MISSISSIPPI ABOVE FLOOD STAGE HERE; FALL DUE TONIGHT

Water, at 30.8 Feet, Up 1.4 Feet in Last 24 Hours, Is Close to Terminal Tracks on the Levee.

WHEAT LAND ON EAST SIDE INUNDATE

Missouri Going Down at St. Charles, but Is Rising Again at Jefferson City, After Receding There.

The Mississippi River reached a stage of 30.8 feet, or nearly 10 inches above flood stage, at the St. Louis levee at 7 a. m. today. This was a rise of 1.4 feet in 24 hours, and of 5 feet in 48 hours. The Weather Bureau predicted a slight drop by tonight, but another rise, with a stage above 31 feet tomorrow. Whether the crest of the flood here will be reached tomorrow, will depend on the subsidence or continuance of rains throughout the Missouri Valley. Tributary rivers above Kansas City were reported as still rising. Steamboats at anchor stood only a few paces from the Terminal tracks on the levee, and it appeared that another foot of water would inundate the tracks. Near Washington avenue, the lowest of the tracks was under water. The Terminal did not use the tracks, but used the higher Wash tracks instead.

The normal stage of the river here is 8 to 12 feet (above low-water mark). At Market street, water surrounded the base of the municipal harbor office. Wharf boats were reached by long improvised bridges, except in the case of one wharfbarge, recently reconstructed, which is on wheels and pulls itself up the levee by means of a pulley and cables.

Situation on East Side. On the East Side, the chief anxiety was shown at the levee protecting the district to the west of Venice, Madison and Granite City. A large tract of wheat land, outside the old levee, was under water. The county supervisors and highway commissioners placed a patrol on the old levee yesterday, because of some threatened breaks.

A new levee, at some distance inside the old levee, would still protect Granite City, Madison and most of Venice, if the old levee should break. Hence, there is little fear of serious conditions in the Tri-Cities.

Missouri Down at St. Charles. This morning's stage of the Missouri River at St. Charles was 29.3 feet, a fall of 1.1 foot from the highest mark reached yesterday, which was 30.4.

Another rise at St. Charles was predicted for tonight, when, according to the St. Louis Weather Bureau, the stage will probably go over 31 feet. This will have a serious effect on thousands of acres of wheat, on both sides of the Missouri River. There was still hope this morning that if the water subsided tonight from the wheat land, the wheat might not be destroyed, but a prolonged inundation would be disastrous. Several farm houses on Missouri Point, in St. Charles County, between the Mississippi and Missouri rivers, were abandoned yesterday by their owners, who stored their goods in the upper stories.

One Missouri Point farmer, a negro, went to Alton today and said to a man who held a mortgage on his place, "The Missouri River has flooded away 60 acres of my security." He believed that his farm would be that much smaller, because of an apparent shift in the channel. The stage of the Mississippi at Alton this morning was 26.6 feet, a rise of 1 foot since last night. A few business concerns on the river moved stocks out of their basements. The water was within a short distance of the Bluff Line tracks.

Wood River, the stream of that name, was swollen by rains from the Mississippi, and there was some fear that it would overflow a considerable industrial area.

Memoriae at Standstill. The stage of the Meramec River at Valley Park today was 12 feet, which is two feet lower than flood stage. Reports at the local observation post indicated that the river would go no higher unless more rain falls upstream. The stage was at a standstill all night. The flood stage does not prove more than the inundation of low fields and is not as high as the fearful stage at many places. The river was up to 22 feet at Valley Park a week ago.

Service on the Missouri Pacific between St. Louis and Kansas City has been restored, but the Missouri, Kansas & Texas is not using its St. Louis-Jefferson City tracks yet.

87,000 VOTERS MUST REGISTER AGAIN BECAUSE OF WARD REDISTRICTING

Election Commissioners Give Notification—Change May Be Made Before or on June 22.

THE Board of Election Commissioners today notified 87,000 registered voters that the recent redistricting of wards makes it necessary for them to register again on or before June 22 in order to eliminate confusion at the August primaries and the November general election.

Notice says that while voters may be registered, the change in ward and precinct boundaries has caused the transfer of 87,000 names to other books and in the interest of lessening the possibility of error, it is best either at the Election Board office prior to June 15 or at the precinct polling place June 22.

The total registration is 309,886.

AMUNDSEN'S PLANE WRECKED IN PENNSYLVANIA; NO ONE HURT

Explorer Was Traveling From New York to Cleveland on First Leg of Cross-Continent Trip.

CLEVELAND, O., April 10.—Capt. Roald Amundsen's monoplane, which left New York this morning for Cleveland, on the first leg of a transcontinental flight, was wrecked at Mifflin, Pa., this afternoon, according to a message received here late today by Charles A. Otis, local broker, from Horace Gade, his New York manager and one of the party.

The telegram said no one was injured and that Gade would reach Cleveland by train tonight.

Capt. Amundsen left Central Park in New York at 8:18 a. m. today in an all-metal monoplane. He planned to fly eventually to Seattle, Wash. Amundsen will leave there June 1 for a drifting voyage in the north polar regions.

CONGRESSMAN HAWES OF 12TH MOVES INTO OWN DISTRICT

Representative Makes Announcement in Filing Candidacy for Re-Election.

Congressman Harry B. Hawes, in filing with the Board of Election Commissioners today his certificate of candidacy for re-nomination, made it known that he had officially moved into his own congressional district. He was elected in 1920 from the Western place, which is in the Twelfth District, represented by Congressman Dyer.

Hawes, according to the registration books, has continued to reside at his home in the Western place, but when he filed his certificate, he also asked to be transferred on the books to 35 Vandeventer place, which is in the Eleventh District, and which is the town home of Sam W. Fordyce.

Hawes' district is considered safely Democratic, Hawes having won there in 1920, the Republican landslide was so far there has been no indication that he would have opposition for the nomination. The last Legislature sought to make the Eleventh a Republican district in a redistricting of the State, but the bill was suspended by referendum petitions circulated by the Democratic State Committee.

CORONER'S JURY EXONERATES GIRL, WHO SHOT FATHER

Maude A. Richie, 18, and Mother Both Freed After Inquest Into Fatal Wounding of G. L. Richie, 52.

JUSTIFIABLE HOMICIDE VERDICT RETURNED

Daughter's Story of How She Happened to Have Revolver in Possession Verified by Her Mother.

Maude A. Richie, 18 years old, a telephone operator, was exonerated by a Coroner's jury today, in the killing of her father, George L. Richie, 52 years old, whom she shot yesterday, early Friday, in the family home, 2612 Bellegrade avenue. The jury's verdict was justifiable homicide.

The girl and her mother, Mrs. Maude A. Richie, who had been held with her in the Police Matron's room since the shooting, were released after the inquest. Assistant Circuit Attorney Ossing, who attended to inquest, said the Circuit Attorney's office would take no immediate action in the case.

Both the girl and her mother told their stories of the shooting at the inquest. Miss Richie was represented by counsel.

Testimony in the Case.

The point in the testimony of mother and daughter which seemed most strongly in the daughter's favor was the statement that the father had previously told her, when her father should have another "tantrum" such as he had had in the past, to get his revolver and place it where he would not find it. The girl's statement, since the shooting, has been that she fulfilled this instruction, and was on her way to hide the revolver, when she had occasion to speak to her father, and he struck her.

The Assistant Circuit Attorney asked both the daughter and the mother whether they had ever talked of the possibility of having to shoot Richie. Both declared that they had not. Mrs. Richie said her husband was suffering from "an incurable disease," which was, to be a cancerous growth, and that in certain "spells" he abused and threatened all the members of the family, in a manner for which he would be penitent later.

"I was awakened by my father quarreling with my mother," the girl testified. "Mother said, 'You know I am nervous and ought to be in a hospital.' He replied, 'You ought to be in a lunatic asylum.'"

Intended to Hide Revolver. "When I heard the way he was talking, I went to the front room and got the revolver out of the wardrobe, and I went to my mother's room and hid it under the mattress of my bed. As I was going to my room, I heard him breaking dishes, and I went to him and said, 'Father, I'm tired of hearing this.' He said, 'I'm tired of it, too,' and he rubbed at me and struck me. The revolver went off twice, and I ran out of the house, carrying the revolver, with only my nightdress on."

"He used to threaten all of us," the girl said in answer to a question as to her father's behavior toward the family. She then told of the understanding with her mother as to the revolver.

Mrs. Richie testified that, when her husband broke dishes in the kitchen, she heard Maude say to him, "Don't do that." The wife said he held a glass, as if to break it or strike someone with it, and that the girl said to him, "Don't you hit mamma. You've done that for the last time."

"Then," said the mother, "instead of striking me, he rushed at her and struck her, and I heard two shots."

MRS. ETHEL CLARK, WHO SUED ACTOR, SWALLOWS POISON

Dorothy Clark's Parent Believed to Have Become Despondent Because She Wouldn't Visit Him.

BOSTON, April 10.—Mrs. Ethel Clark, who recently sued the actor Herbert Rawlinson, motion picture actor, for $200,000, alleging seduction of her daughter, Dorothy, swallowed poison early yesterday and is in a serious condition at a hospital.

Her daughter's alleged refusal to visit her at her sick bed in a Back Bay private institution was believed to have been one of the causes for Mrs. Clark's act. The daughter recently was married.

MANUFACTURERS LOSE DECISION ON SALES CONTRACTS

Supreme Court Denies Right to Enforce Agreements to Sell Copyrighted Products Exclusively.

CASE BROUGHT BY PATTERN COMPANY

Concern Sought Injunction Against Boston Firm Selling Other Patterns—Government Intervened.

WASHINGTON, April 10.—Manufacturers cannot enforce contracts under which dealers had agreed exclusively to handle their copyrighted products, the Supreme Court today held in a case brought by the Standard Fashion Co. against the Hagranger-Houston Co. of Boston.

The Issues Involved.

The issues involved in the case were similar in vital respects to those presented in the United Shoe Machinery case. In the latter control was exercised, the Government contended, through leases based on patents, while in the Standard Fashion case the control, it was asserted, was attempted by contracts involving copyrighted articles. In both cases the lower Federal Courts held the practices complained of to be in violation of Section 3 of the Clayton act, on the ground that the effect "may be substantially to lessen competition or tend to create a monopoly."

The Standard Fashion Co. and two affiliated companies, through a common holding company, control, the courts found, exclusive contracts with about 20,000 of the 52,000 pattern agencies in the United States and Canada. Under the terms of the contract the agencies agreed not to sell patterns of other makes. When the Hagranger-Houston Co. violated the contract, the Standard Fashion company sought an injunction and damages. The Government was permitted to intervene when the case reached the Supreme Court.

Dealers acting as exclusive agents were required to maintain a minimum stock, purchased at a price half that at which the patterns were returned to the Standard company, the dealers receiving upon them a credit of 75 per cent of the purchase price.

Plea of the Company.

The Fashion Co. insisted these contracts were not sales, explaining it was intended to sell the patterns through local dealers to the public and not to the local dealer. The United States District and Circuit Courts both rejected this contention, and considered the contracts as a part of a wide extended system which would enable the company to control almost, if not all, the pattern business. Viewing the contract "in the light of the surrounding circumstances," the Circuit Court agreed that a stipulation to maintain resale prices and quoted decisions declaring such contracts invalid.

The decision of the lower courts, as interpreted by the Government, was that where the courts could see that the effect of a contract might be to substantially lessen competition or to tend to create a monopoly, it was not necessary that the contract should be proven to have been its effect. Had Congress intended that the statute should be effective only where its effect had been to restrict competition, it would have so declared, the Government argued.

Contention as to Contract.

The corporation contended that the contract was one of special agency or joint venture, not subject to the Clayton act. It declared that without reference to the evidence, the courts had decided that there had been provided means for lessening competition, irrespective of the use made of the contract, and had given no consideration to "undisputed evidence that there had been no lessening of competition, but held on the contrary that the plan was competitive, and extremely advantageous to the public."

In support of its assertion that competition had been keen, the corporation said that competitors had in a majority of cases come into existence since the contracts were adopted, and had obtained a greater number of the 52,000 pattern agencies than it had, one of them about twice as many. The corporation also stated that no competitor of the corporation had complained of its methods as being unfair.

$10,000 IN $5 NOTES IS FOUND FLOATING IN POTOMAC RIVER

Department of Justice Agents Dig Near Engraving Bureau; Silent as to Clues.

WASHINGTON, April 10.—While still trying to solve the mystery of the $10,000 in $5 bills turned over to them by a boatman who found the money floating in the Potomac River Friday, Department of Justice agents put in yesterday digging in various places in the vicinity of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing. Whether they had definite clues of money stolen from the bureau and buried nearby could not be learned, nor could it be ascertained whether the inventory now being taken at the money production plant of the bureau. So far as could be learned, however, no treasure was uncovered in yesterday's diggings.

Department of Justice agents, so far as known, had not succeeded in their efforts today to trace the source of the 2000 $5 bills found in the river. The bills, which had been torn into fragments and placed in an envelope when found, were examined yesterday by Director Hill of the Bureau of Printing and Engraving, who succeeded to that office on the recent dismissal of James W. Wilmoth and numerous other officials of the bureau. Director Hill later indicated that he did not believe the bills were stolen from the bureau.

II ATTACK AUNT'S WILL LEAVING $1,000,000 ESTATE TO NEGROES

Nephews and Nieces of Calista Mayhew Allege Unsound Mind and Undue Influence.

NEWARK, N. J., April 10.—An appeal against the probate of the will of Mrs. Calista S. Mayhew, South Orange, leaving most of her $1,000,000 estate to negro homes and institutions in various parts of the country, has been filed by 11 nieces and nephews. The date of the hearing will be fixed this week.

U. R. RULE ON DEPOSITING OF FARES UPHELD IN COURT

Two Men Fined $5 Each for Refusing to Put Tokens in Box, as Required.

A United Railways regulation requiring passengers to drop their fares into a box instead of giving them to conductors, was upheld in Police Court today when Charles H. Dan-jon, 1967 Virginia avenue, and Robert J. Trice, 2412 Biddle street, range makers, were fined $5 each on a charge of disturbing the peace.

Danielson and Trice boarded a west-bound Market car at Tamm avenue yesterday afternoon and dropped their fares in the box. Then they rode around the loop a few blocks west of Tamm avenue and on the downtown trip when the conductor demanded another fare, they had a quarrel, getting some fare tokens, but would not drop the tokens into the box. The conductor refused to accept the tokens himself and had the men arrested.

ROBBERS GET $10,000 IN BONDS AND MONEY FROM TRUNK

Bank Certificates Included in Theft in Home in Peoria Last Night.

PEORIA, Ill., April 10.—Robbers last night forced the rear entrance to the home of John Lane, broke the lid from a trunk and escaped with cash, Liberty bonds and bank certificates valued at $10,650.

The robbery occurred between 7 and 9 o'clock last night while Mr. and Mrs. Lane were attending church services. They returned home at 9:15 o'clock to find everything in order except the trunk, which bore evidence of having been plundered. Lane found the money and securities representing virtually his life's savings, missing.

BROLASKI CONVICTION UPHELD

Former St. Louisan Must Serve Two Years in Leger Case.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—The conviction of Harry A. Brolaski, former St. Louisan, at San Francisco under the national prohibition act, must stand, the Supreme Court held today, refusing to review his case. He contended that his conviction should be set aside because "comments, remarks and observations" of the court coerced the verdict against him, and deprived him of certain constitutional rights.

The Circuit Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit affirmed the lower court in imposing a fine of $10,000 and imprisonment for two years.

GENOA PARLEY BEGUN; LLOYD GEORGE HOPES FOR EVENTUAL U. S. AID

DETAILS OF GRAND JURY PRESENTMENT AGAINST REILLY

Long Story of Alleged Appropriation of Public Money by Porto Rican Governor for Private Use.

REPORT CABLED TO WASHINGTON

Governor Said to Have Appeared Before Jury With $2000 He Said Was Left After Trip to U. S.

WASHINGTON, April 10.—A long story of alleged appropriation of public money for private use "without scruples or justification" is told in a copy received here today of the recent grand jury presentment returned in Porto Rico against Gov. E. Mont Rely, his secretary, John Hull, and Auditor W. L. Kessinger.

In asking the prosecuting attorney to prepare indictments against the three officials the grand jury charged that they all gave their approval of numerous irregularities, disbursements for the Governor's recent trip to Washington, for an inaugural tour through the island, and for other purposes. It also is alleged in the jury's findings that public money was paid out and charged against purchases for the executive mansion in cases where the jury is convinced that the material mentioned was "not purchased for official use."

Specific Charges Made.

In the case of the inaugural tour, the trip to Washington and smaller items, the jury's report says, the money advanced to Gov. Rely by Auditor Kessinger, was paid over on a warrant which stated that the sums disbursed were "due the several payees" and which required no subsequent accounting. At other times it was charged in the evidence before the jury that the Governor drew "divers sums" from the Treasury on similar warrants and "through simple letters signed by Secretary Hull."

Much of the money, it is added, was paid back to the Porto Rican Government by the Governor after the grand jury investigation began. The report says the first knowledge of a surplus from the $5000 advanced for the Washington trip was when the Governor appeared before the jury and pulled out of his pocket $2000 which he stated was left over.

The Governor is said to have explained that he had not returned the surplus sooner because he was waiting for a complete record of his expenses during the trip.

Jury's Report in Part.

The grand jury's report, as it was cabled to President Commissioner Felix Cordova Davila here by Antonio R. Barcelo, president of the Porto Rico Senate, said in part:

"That the Governor solicited from the insular treasury $5000 in the nature of advance for making official trips to Washington going and returning in company of divers persons. . . . Governor himself examined and approved requisition and Auditor Kessinger authorized payment such funds and issued two settlement warrants 'due the several payees' public funds, has no record of any explanation having been asked concerning motive afore-said trip to Washington, did not try to verify how many persons composed party, nor did he ask for official appointments such persons. . . . nor did it occur to him to ascertain whether or not there was any money left over."

"Things were done as if people

PALMER RAIDS ON RADICALS DEFENDED

Senator Sterling's Report Made Public With Another by Walsh, Attacking Action.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 10.—General defense of the radical raids of 1919 and 1920 conducted by order of Attorney-General Palmer was made in a report by Senator Sterling, Republican, of South Dakota, chairman of a Senate Judiciary Investigating Subcommittee made public today with a supplemental report by Senator Walsh, Democrat, of Montana, attacking vigorously the raids and challenging conclusions of the Sterling report.

FRENCH, ENGLISH AND A GERMAN WOMAN TO TOUR U. S. FOR PEACE

Movement to Be Started at Convention to Unite Women of World Against War.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. WASHINGTON, April 10.—A French, an English and a German woman will tour the United States together in the interest of world peace following the convention of the American section of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom here, April 28 to 30. At the convention a movement will be started to unite the women of the world against war.

The appearance of the three women together will be the first time since the war that representatives of the countries involved will speak in large American cities from the same platform. They will describe economic conditions resulting from the war. The German delegate will be Gertrude Baer, who is to be accompanied by Mrs. Ann Robinson of Manchester, the British delegate will be Mrs. Theresa Potcher, representing the women of France.

TORNADO HITS 3 MISSOURI COUNTIES; TWO MEN KILLED

Damage Done Near Miller in Lawrence County, and Ash Grove, in Greene.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., April 10.—Two persons were killed and a number injured this morning when a tornado struck near Miller, Lawrence County, and swept over Ash Grove, Harrold and Luck, in Greene County, causing much property damage. The storm was traveling in a northeasterly direction from Ash Grove and reports this afternoon indicated that Morrisville, Polk County, also had suffered heavily from the storm.

The dead are J. D. Culbertson, 72, and Joe Baker, a farm laborer, both of Ash Grove.

MOVING MOUNTAIN AGAIN SEEN

Clouds Lift and Observers Believe Part of Peak Has Dropped.

By the Associated Press.

HOOD RIVER, Ore., April 10.—After being veiled since last Thursday night by heavy clouds, Mount Adams again was visible today, and observers believe that a large section on the west of the summit had dropped some distance.

Last Thursday many persons watched a cleft appear in the top peak at its west end. Heavy new snows have obliterated evidence of the cleft.

EUROPE FIRST MUST HELP HERSELF, SAYS BRITISH CHIEF

Conference Formally Opened by Premier Facta of Italy, Who Is Chosen Permanent President—Wirth and Chitcher in Program for Addresses.

CITY ASTIR EARLY; FLAGS EVERYWHERE

Representatives of 33 States Gathered in St. George's Palace to Plan Return of Normal Economic Conditions in Europe.

GENOA, April 10.—Premier Lloyd George of Great Britain, in his speech at the Economic Conference here today, evidently referring to Russia, said:

"We meet here on equal terms provided we accept the equal conditions outlined at the Supreme Council meeting at Cannes. If any reject these conditions for civilized intercourse between the Powers, they can expect to be received into the company of nations."

"The first need of Europe is peace. Actual fighting has ceased, but anarchy is still going on. We shall make a real contribution to progress if we can stop this anarchy."

"There are many dogs in every country that imagine the louder they bark, the deeper will be the impression of their ferocity. Europe must get rid of this canine clamor. It is undignified. It destroys confidence. 'We must proceed and succeed, not in a spirit of greed, but through a common desire to restore the world's health and vigor. Let us not attempt any restrictions.'"

Chancellor Wirth of Germany declared the meeting was a sign of world understanding to come.

The fourth day of the conference would be a terrible disappointment to all peoples," he declared.

By the Associated Press.

GENOA, April 10.—The Genoa economic conference was opened formally this afternoon in the historic Palace of St. George, by Premier Facta of Italy.

The British Premier was applauded as he rose to deliver the speech of welcome. He expressed the hope that the work of the conference would prove successful and give itself to the betterment of the nations of the earth. The Premier then read the welcoming message to the delegates from King Victor Emmanuel.

The delegations were seated at tables ranged about the hall, with the representatives of the principal allies in the foremost places.

Facta Permanent President.

Prime Minister Lloyd George of Great Britain proposed that Premier Facta be appointed permanent president of the conference. Louis Barthou, head of the French delegation, immediately seconded this proposal, which was approved by acclamation.

Premier Lloyd George evoked applause and continued laughter when he said: "Genoa did America a great service by sending Columbus to discover the world and she can do America another great service by helping America to rediscover Europe."

The British Premier said he was positive America would come to the aid of Europe if Europe settled its own affairs.

Facta Explains Purpose.

Premier Facta in his opening speech said the conference was an international humane organization which had met to remedy all the evils which Europe was suffering.

"There are no longer enemies and friends," he continued; "there are neither victors nor vanquished. There are only men of one nation and another who wish to unite all their energies to reach together, a very noble end. We must first establish peaceful relations between

IRISH REPUBLICAN ARMY ATTACKED; CAPTAIN WOUNDED

Exchange of Fire at Bradford, County Claire—Besieged Official Forces Refuse to Surrender.

CIVIL WAR FEARED BY MICHAEL COLLINS

Head of Provisional Government Says It Looks as if Only Miracle Can Avert It and Return of the British.

LONDON, April 10.—The police barracks at Bradford, County Claire, occupied by official Irish Republican army units, were attacked at 2 o'clock this morning, says a dispatch from Limerick. There was an exchange of fire for a considerable time, the besieged force refusing to surrender.

Capt. William O'Brien, who was in charge of the units occupying the barracks, was fatally wounded. No other details of the fighting are available at the time the dispatch was sent.

British Soldiers Fully Armed Appear in Streets of Dublin.

DUBLIN, April 10.—British military force fully armed appeared in the streets of Dublin yesterday for the first time since the creation of a truce in Ireland.

Humors That De Valera Has Been Deposed by Republicans Denied.

DUBLIN, April 10.—A statement issued by the Irish Republican public department today contradicted the rumor given from an article in the London Daily Mail that Eamon de Valera has been deposed as leader of the Republicans at the secret meeting of the Irish Republican army in Dublin yesterday.

In a speech delivered yesterday, Michael Collins, head of the provisional Government, declared that unless there was an immediate change in the tone and tactics of certain of the people, "it looks as if civil war can only be averted by a miracle."

Collins added that in such a contingency there was little doubt the British would return to the order which the Irish would have shown themselves unable to preserve.

Collins foils opponents. Train holdups and attempts to prevent meetings continued yesterday. A Dublin train on which Collins was supposed to be traveling to Wexford found the rails had been taken up near Arklow. Armed men prevented a repair gang from replacing the rails. Collins had foiled his opponents by making the trip during the night.

th nations that they may co-ordinate their national energies, which have been entirely destroyed by the war. We must also study the whole series of economic and financial problems, and you may rest assured that Italy will carry out its policy with the greatest determination and stability among the nations."

"At Washington," continued the Italian Premier, "we saw the dark cloud of the Russian value. At Genoa we must work for the peace of Europe. So far as the economic aspect is concerned Italy is ready to remove all obstacles which are putting hindrance in the way of development of commerce by a policy of prohibition or protection."

"As regards financial questions, Italy will appreciate any solution calculated to reduce the inflation of paper money, to stabilize exchange and to make possible the collaboration of the stronger states with the weaker. The international community can be saved only if independent, autonomous and sovereignty are equally guaranteed to the various states."

All Genoa was said early today. Every street in the city was literally beflagged and all the ships in the harbor were decked with bunting. Crowds began to gather during the forenoon before the royal palace, watching the incessant coming and going of automobiles carrying the delegates who were calling on Signor Schanzer, the Italian Foreign Minister.

Speeches on Program.

Agreement was reached among the delegates that Premier Facta be elected president of the conference and Signor Schanzer vice chairman. The program called for speeches following that of the Italian Premier by Prime Minister Lloyd George of England, Louis Barthou, French Minister of Justice, Chancellor Wirth of Germany, Foreign Minister Chicherin of Russia and Premier Theunis of Belgium. Representatives of 23 states were prepared to take steps that it is hoped will lead to the economic reconstruction of Europe, the conference particularly to be concerned with plans for rebuilding Central Europe and rehabilitating Russia, which is admitted by many delegates to be a subject of supreme importance itself, perhaps the most far-reaching question which the conference shall be called upon to solve.

The Ambassador from the United States, Richard Washburn Child, is to take his seat today in a section reserved for eminent visitors. He is to attend all the open meetings, but will not be present at any conferences of committees at which the actual important work of the conference will be completed.

Palms Sunday Crowds Seen at Palace. Great throngs on Palm Sunday visited the scene of today's conference and found scores of assistants engaged in carrying plants and flowers to relieve the somewhat somber and long aspect of the auditorium. Thousands of interested Genoaese gathered along the water front seeking advantageous positions from which to observe foreign diplomats and distinguished statesmen upon their arrival. In the Bay of Genoa itself, acrobacies of small tugboats and the more impressive and deep-throated whistles of larger craft seemed to breathe life into the modern city of Genoa, whose vessels sail to markets on all seven seas.

Lively scenes surrounding the opening of the congress, intensified by the activity of this busy port of commerce, impressed observers as a fitting background for a congress whose serious mission is the restoration of economic health to a suffering and sorely tried Europe.

Russians Call on Italians. The Russian delegation yesterday asked for permission to visit the members of the Italian delegation, and Chicherin, Litvinoff, Joffe and Vorovsky, who was the last Russian representative in Italy, were received by Premier Facta and Foreign Minister Schanzer at the Royal Palace. The half hour conversation was described by the Italians as most cordial.

The Russians were offered motor cars to take them to Santa Margherita, but declined, and walked through the streets of Genoa unprotected, to the consternation of the Italian police officials, who declared it was impossible to guarantee the safety of the Russians if they wandered about without guards. Observers are pointing out some similarity in the French attitude to that of the French delegation at the Washington conference, as the French representatives in Genoa plan themselves here in opposition to other of the principal allies in some matter of detail. For instance, it has developed that the French objected to admitting speeches from Chancellor Wirth of Germany and Foreign Minister Chicherin of Soviet Russia at the inaugural session of the conference.

Be Careful What You Wash Your Child's Hair With

If you want to keep your child's hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Multifid coconut oil shampoo, which is pure and entirely greaseless, is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply put two or three teaspoonfuls of Multifid in a cup of glass with a little warm water, then moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Multifid coconut oil shampoo at any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Multifid.

ACCOUNTING FILED ON $350,000,000 OF ENEMY HOLDINGS

Report by Custodian Is First Since February, 1919; Property to Be Held Until Germany Satisfies U. S. Claims.

WASHINGTON, April 10.—An accounting of the $350,000,000 worth of enemy property held by the Government was given to the Senate today in a report, the first compiled since February, 1919, filed by Alien Property Custodian Thomas W. Miller in response to a resolution by Senator King, Democrat of Utah.

"The final disposition of the property," Miller said, "will undoubtedly have a direct effect on economic bearings between this country and Europe, with particular reference to the late enemy Powers."

Discussing the $415,000,000 of American claims against Germany, Miller recalled the terms of the Knox-Porter peace resolution, indicating that no disposition should be made of enemy property held by the United States until the German Government had satisfied American claims. He said that Congress must evolve some plan whereby claims against Germany may be legally adjudicated.

Several Classes of Claims. "There are several classes of claims against Germany," Miller said, "as for instance, those of Americans whose cash was seized by the German custodian, and who are now being offered the return of their money at the depreciated value of the mark, which today is valued at one-third of a cent for each mark. This proposition amounts to practical confiscation on the part of the German Government. There are also claims on file growing out of submarine sinkings previous to April 6, 1917."

"If the German property were returned today without any conditions, the tax laws in force in Germany would require German nationals or other people under the jurisdiction of the German Government whose property was returned to them to give up in taxes to the German Government a major portion of the funds returned."

It has been suggested that the amount of money which the German Government would receive from such taxation might form the basis of a fund in America for satisfying claims of Americans against Germany."

Miller's report gives the details of about 23,000 articles representing property in every state and territory consisting of industrial plants, steamship lines, banks, land and cattle companies, salmon factories, gold and silver mines and thousands of parcels of real estate and securities.

Bergdoff's Property Last Seized. Answering charges by Senator King that property had been seized since peace was concluded with Germany, the report declared that the last property seized was that belonging to Grover Cleveland Bergdoff, which was seized May 27, 1921.

Responding to inquiry for details of salaries and fees paid the report showed the following list: Attorney's fees paid prior to March 4, 1921, $2,152,115; attorneys' fees paid since March 4, 1921, $54,920; salaries of officers and directors of corporations previous to March 4, 1921, $1,574,917; salaries since March 4, 1921, $124,435; paid for accounting and appraisals previous to March 4, 1921, $911,000; paid for the same since March 4, 1921, $27,118; paid for advertising and printing previous to March 4, 1921, $258,487.

One accounting alone of $173,737, the report declared was paid to an accounting firm for a report covering various operations of the custodian's office to August, 1919, but which was not completed until April 1, 1921, and was then "of no practical value."

WOMAN FIRES, ROUTING ROBBERS HOLDING UP CAFE

Men Searching Customers in South Broadway Wine Garden Flee on Hearing Shots From Upstairs.

Three shots fired from an upstairs window by Mrs. Anna C. Bohm at 12:30 a. m. today put to flight five robbers who were holding up her cafe, another stood guard in the entry and two entered, stamping their feet to attract attention. They exhibited revolvers and ordered eight men and eight women in the cafe to hold up their hands.

The robbers began to search the customers. His progress was so slow that several of the women had time to put rings in their mouths. One sat on her pocketbook and saved it. Another took the watch and chain of her escort and poked it down the bosom of her dress. The robber did not obtain it.

The other robber, at entry ran to the rear where a stairway led to the kitchen in the basement. A waiter was ascending. He ran by the robber through a living room adjoining the cafe and into a parlor, slamming the door and locking it in the robber's face.

The robber then compelled the proprietor's daughter, Miss Henrietta Bohm, 18 years old, and two dishwashers to come from the kitchen into the living room where he began to question them as to the location of a safe. Meanwhile he picked up a cigar box in the room and finding that it contained $40, emptied it into his pockets.

He had given Miss Bohm "50 seconds" to tell where the safe was, and she had begun to answer that there was none, when Mrs. Bohm began firing from the upstairs window. The robber stopped his questioning and ran, following the customer, who had been searching the customers, from the cafe.

Meanwhile, Miss Frieda Bohm, 21, and Miss Helen Marian, 18, who were in the parlor when the waiter dashed in and slammed the door, had run across the street to summon help. Mrs. Raabe was responding to their call, when the last robber emerged from the cafe, firing his revolver blindly in reply to the three shots which had alarmed him. Raabe crouched behind a picket fence and emptied a pistol at the robber, who ran till he joined his companions in the automobile, which was driven off.

Mrs. Bohm learned from the customers that about $200 was taken from the eight men.

23 FRENCH TROOPS REPORTED DEAD IN SILESIA EXPLOSION

One German Foreman Also Said to Have Lost Life at Smelting Works at Gleiwitz—Ten Hurt.

BERLIN, April 10.—Twenty-three French soldiers and one German foreman are now stated to have been killed and 10 others injured in yesterday's explosion at the Huetten Smelting Works, near Gleiwitz, Upper Silesia. Tremendous excitement was reported from Gleiwitz with the expectation that martial law would be proclaimed.

The latest accounts declare the explosion occurred in the family vault of Count Einsiedel, one of the founders of the Royal Smelting Works in the cemetery connected with the works.

German authorities are unable to conduct investigations, the advice state, as the inter-allied commission for Upper Silesia is in control, but it is declared that so far no evidence incriminating German subjects has been found.

REFUND ON LIENS ASSURED

Supreme Court Upholds Lower Court

Special to the Post-Dispatch. JEFFERSON CITY, April 10.—The Missouri Supreme Court today affirmed the decision of Circuit Judge McElhinney setting aside liens on ground in St. Louis County Seniors District No. 1. The county will have to refund approximately $17,000 collected from residents of Webster Groves, Shrewsbury and Glendale.

The decision, written by Commissioner Stephen Brown and concurred in by all of the Judges, did not touch upon the constitutionality of the method of collection.

Five-Cent Street Car Fare Upheld.

WASHINGTON, April 10.—Reduction of street car fares in Galveston, Tex. from 6 cents to 5 cents, as ordered by the Board of Commissioners of that city, and upheld by the U. S. District Court for Southern Texas, was upheld today by the Supreme Court. The company sought to have the decision reversed on the ground that the court had not considered certain items entering into operating expenses in determining a fair and reasonable rate.

LLOYD GEORGE ARRIVES WITH GOLF CLUBS; GENOA STARTS 2-HOLE COURSE

GENOA, April 10.—On a steep hillside back of Villa Alberti workmen are clearing space for a two-hole golf course for Premier Lloyd George.

A fortnight ago the Mayor asked a Britisher here to arrange for golf for the delegates, apparently thinking it was as easy to prepare for as tennis. The Englishman explained and the matter was dropped.

Then Lloyd George arrived, bearing his golf clubs, for he did not know Genoa did not have a golf course. His hosts were embarrassed, but they are doing the best they can, although if the Premier footsies his drive the ball will go bounding down to the Mediterranean, half a mile away.

of Porto Rico had been indebted to Governor in $5000.

Alleged Unlawful Form Used. "The form unlawfully used in this case and their heretofore mentioned is that in which auditor said: 'My reason for said payments are that I find that there is due the several payees mentioned upon the attached abstracts the amount set opposite their names and that the disbursements for these payments are properly certified by the department head or other official having charge of the expenditure, and are submitted for payment and proper receipt thereon of each draft enclosed. It is clear that there was no such indebtedness because insular treasury was owing nothing to Governor. . . . The Governor has not rendered the account of the disbursement of $5000 and he understands that pursuant to evidence in possession of this grand jury that he is under no obligation to detail and prove his expenses but to only make general report."

The investigation of this grand jury went to bottom of affairs and in consequence of questions propounded to the Governor, who returned from the States Jan. 24, he pulled out of his pocket in presence of jury $2000 which he states was left over from his trip to Washington and it was from that moment that knowledge was had of the existence of said surplus."

DAUGHERTY MAY DROP STRIKE INDICTMENTS

Operators Have Asserted These Make Impossible Any Wage Conference With Miners.

By the Associated Press. INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 10.—Attorney-General Daugherty, who arrived here from Washington today, unannounced, was declared authoritatively to be considering the dismissal of indictments pending here in Federal Court, which some operators have declared made impossible any wage conference that would end the coal strike, which began April 1.

It could not be learned before Daugherty's arrival whether any new legal action was contemplated in the present suspension of coal mining, the officials asserting they knew nothing of the visit. The Attorney-General, however, was expected to confer with local Federal officials in regard to the indictments pending against 225 coal operators, union leaders and others on charges of conspiracy to violate the Sherman antitrust law.

The Attorney-General refused to state the purpose of his trip, declaring he could say nothing until "investigation of the purpose of my trip is complete, and I am satisfied that any action is right."

West Virginia Miners Forbidden to Interfere With Nonunion Men.

By the Associated Press. CHARLESTON, W. Va., April 10.—Mine union members and officers are forbidden to interfere with free competition among men working in the coal industry of West Virginia, and tent colonies of strikers in Mingo County are not to be maintained after 30 days, under a temporary injunction issued by Judge George W. McClintic in United States District Court here today.

The injunction, addressed to various international and District 17 officers of the United Mine Workers of America and to all officers and members of that organization, was issued on the petition of the Board of Coal and 42 other West Virginia and Kentucky operators.

Edward Schertzer, 38 years old, a shoe worker, died while being taken to the city hospital from injuries suffered at 2:15 a. m. yesterday, when an automobile he was driving crashed into the rear end of a northbound Broadway car that was taking on passengers at Courtis street.

Charles Fitzgerald, 28, a laborer, of 3501 Arkansas avenue, who was riding in the front seat with Schertzer, is at the hospital suffering from fracture of a right rib and lacerations of the groin. The examining physician said Fitzgerald was also suffering from alcoholism when brought there. He could give no account of the accident.

John Allen, 3609 North Ninth street, conductor of the street car, said he saw the automobile approaching in the northbound tracks and that it struck his car just as the last passenger stepped aboard and he was closing the door. After the automobile hit the car, it swerved and hit the curb.

Schertzer's body was identified at the morgue by his brother, August. He lived with his widowed mother, Mrs. Coralie Schertzer, at 1510 Meard street. Fitzgerald was arrested. Man Knocked Down by Machine at

REVISION OF PRAYER BOOK IS EXPECTED

General Convention of Episcopal Church to Consider Cuts at Portland in September.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 10.—"Boiling down" the Ten Commandments for brevity's sake, the suggested revision in the prayer book, if accepted by the general convention of the Episcopal church, at Portland, Ore., in September, will allow clergymen to employ either the short or long forms. Five of the commandments stand as heretofore, without blue penciling. The joint commission on the Book of Common Prayer has recommended the cuts.

Once the deletions are approved, it will not be necessary for the priest to announce, for instance, that a loving God visits "the sis of the fathers upon the children, unto the third and fourth generations." Nor shall he be compelled to hold out to those who honor their fathers and mothers the promise that "Thy days may be long in the land in which the Lord, thy God, giveth thee."

The report of the joint commission recommends that the commandments be printed in full in the prayer book. Two styles of type are to be used to differentiate the mandatory parts of the commandments from the additional parts, which the clergy may omit.

Storms of controversy have raged in recent years over phrases in the commandments which it is aimed to make optional. Many clergymen have consistently refrained to use the full decalogue and have substituted the alternative. Summary of the Law, taken from the Holy Gospel. Thus, instead of rehearsing the Ten Commandments, they have said: "Hear what our Lord, Jesus Christ, saith: Thou shalt love the Lord, thy God, with all thy heart and with all thy soul, with all thy mind. This is the first and great commandment. And the second is like unto it: Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. On these two commandments hang all the law and the prophets."

Under the short form of commandments, the first remains unchanged. The second leaves out all after the words "Thou shalt not bow down to them nor worship them." The third is cut to "Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord, thy God, in vain." The fourth, the only part retained, reads, "Remember that thou keep holy the Sabbath day." The fifth merely commands, "Honor thy father and thy mother." There is no further change until the Tenth Commandment is reached. That is shortened to read, "Thou shalt not covet."

NEW YORK DRY AGENTS IN COSTUME ON RAIDS

Izzy Einstein and Moe Smith Are Dust-Covered Tourists, Then Thirsty Coachmen.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 10.—Disguised as tourists, their motor car covered with mud and dirt, and their faces smeared with dust, Izzy Einstein and Moe Smith, New York's most versatile prohibition agents, yesterday raided nearly two score cafes, arresting 26 proprietors and employees and seizing liquor valued by them at $30,000. It was the first Sabbath liquor raid ever made here by Federal agents. Seven nationalities were represented in the list of prisoners, who were rounded up after several hours' work.

The bluest haul was made in a former saloon at 335 Amsterdam avenue. Izzy and Moe breezed into the place in the morning.

"Did you enjoy that speech last night?" asked Izzy of Moe as they approached the bar.

"I did not," replied Moe disgustedly. "There was too much prohibition in it."

"What will you have boys?" asked the proprietor, smiling.

"A little hooch," brazenly replied Izzy.

Proprietor Gets Surprise.

The proprietor poured the liquor in a glass and the two agents poured it into test tubes, which they carried in their vest pockets. The owner, stunned by surprise, then was placed under arrest.

A search of the place, Einstein said, revealed 55 cases of champagne and other imported wines, several cases of beer and whisky and scores of bottles of assorted liquors.

Before proceeding to the Bronx, Einstein and Smith changed their disguises, assuming that of coach drivers, high hats and all.

He Gets His Sunday Off.

"I don't like these Sunday funerals," complained Izzy as they walked into the first Bronx saloon.

"Neither do I," replied Moe. "I hate to work on Sunday."

The bartender who served them with liquor agreed with them, saying: "I'd like to go to the Polo Grounds this afternoon, but the boss won't let me off."

"Sure, he will," replied Izzy. "Come along with me"—and he flashed his shield.

They had no difficulty, the agents said, in getting liquor except in one place, where the bartender, who was serving near beer, told them to "beat it," and picked up an empty bottle. Izzy and Moe walked out, satisfied, they said, that there was no chance of getting anything "on the bartender today."

"But we may go back," Moe said. The average price of a drink, Einstein said, was 50 cents.

EDISON SUBSIDIARY ALLOWED TO BUY UNION ELECTRIC STOCK

Purchase Is Said to Facilitate Giving of Financial Aid by Parent Company.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 10.—The North American Edison Co. of Delaware was granted permission today by the State Public Service Commission to buy 110,152 shares of the common stock of the Union Electric Light and Power Co. of St. Louis from the North American Edison Co. of New Jersey, and pledge that stock as part security on an issue of $14,000,000 30-year 6 per cent gold bonds to be taken by the Union Central Trust Co. of New York.

The Union Electric stock referred to is all of that corporation's outstanding common stock and has a par value of $10.15.200. The North American Edison Co. is a subsidiary of the North American Co.

In the pending transaction the North American Co. proposes to issue and deliver to the North American Edison Co. $7,000,000 par value 6 per cent cumulative preferred stock and $10,000,000 cash in its treasury electric common, in return for which it is to receive the entire 200,000 shares of no par value stock of the North American Edison Co. The latter also has contracted to buy $10,940,100 par value common stock of the Cleveland Electric Illuminating Co., which is 72.7 per cent of the outstanding common stock of that concern. On the basis of these securities and $10,000,000 cash in its treasury the North American Edison Co. then proposes to float its $14,000,000 bond issue.

The North American declares this procedure is not inimical to the public interest, but will better enable it to aid its subsidiaries when they need financial assistance.

The application will be heard this afternoon by the commission.

stein said, was 50 cents.

"And it is terrible stuff, worse than furniture polish," he added.

Quarrel Begins Raid—But—

A bootleggers' quarrel in a West Side garage yesterday in which several shots were fired sent police reserves to the place where they confiscated 36,000 quarts of wine, whisky and brandy.

Crowds attracted by the raid attempted to rush the garage when the quantity of the liquor became known, breaking windows and throwing the neighborhood into disorder until dispersed by police with drawn clubs.

It required 10 hours to remove the cases of liquor in the patrol wagons and motor trucks to the West Thirtieth street police station. Officers with drawn revolvers rode on each vehicle, after a report was spread that bootleggers would attempt to recover the seized contraband.

Capt. Howard said persons in the neighborhood told him the liquor had been brought to the garage Saturday from a transatlantic liner that recently reached port.

JAMES M. COX TO STUDY LEAGUE AT CLOSE RANGE

Plans to Pass Summer Getting First-Hand Perspective at Sessions of Nations' Agents.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 10.—Following his Jefferson day speech, in which he inferentially declared his candidacy for the Democratic presidential nomination of 1934 on a pro-league platform, fresh in the public mind, former Gov. James M. Cox of Ohio made the significant remark yesterday to a reporter that he intended to sail for Europe early in June, that he may pass the summer studying the League of Nations at close range.

He said he would like to be on hand when the assembly of the league convenes. He will return for the fall elections, which he is confident will give the Democrats a majority in the House and a substantial gain in the Senate.

Cox was in his suite at the Waldorf-Astoria, surrounded by a group which included Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi and Joseph P. Tuohy, formerly secretary to President Wilson.

Referring to his Saturday night address, in which he touched on the main achievements of the league and urged his Democratic audience to "hold the line," and remember that "no great cause was ever won in a single battle," Cox said, "My main reason in delivering that speech was that I believe the average person in the United States has no conception whatever of what the league has accomplished or what it is capable of accomplishing in the future."

The Geneva conference, with the United States on the outside, he said, was like any conference of creditors with the principal creditor away.

Auto License Time Extended.

The last "day of grace" for obtaining State and city automobile licenses for 1932, which was to have been last Tuesday, again has been extended to April 15. After that, it was announced today, drivers of automobiles without this year's licenses will be arrested.

ST. LOUISAN ROBBED IN CHICAGO; WOMAN HELD

Hardy Ligon Enticed Into Alley, $4000 Ring, Watch and $30 Taken, He Says.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, April 10.—Miss Clara Billington, 30 years old, of 829 Galt avenue, was arrested early today following a report made to the police by Hardy Ligon, who is in the real estate business at 16 North Eighth street, St. Louis, that she lured him into an alley behind her home, where three men robbed him of a 4 1/2 carat diamond ring valued at $4000, a watch and chain valued at $50, and $30 in money.

Ligon, who is staying at the Sheridan Plaza Hotel, told the police that he saw Miss Billington on Sheridan road Sunday night and asked her to go for a drive. After making a tour of the cabarets, he said, he drove back to the Galt avenue address shortly after midnight. The girl, he said, asked him to drive into the alley, saying her parents would object to the lateness of the hour.

"We drove to the rear of the house, and then three men told me to stick them up, while the girl walked into the house," said Ligon. Policemen sent to investigate the story learned that the girl has been living alone in an expensive apartment for four months. The girl said she met Ligon, St. Louis, while rooming at a house owned by him on the North Side. While there, she said, she gave him her Chicago address and telephone number and invited him to call on her. She said she left him when he went to park the car in the alley and that she went into the house. She said she did not know he had been robbed until the police came after her.

WOMAN CASHIER HELD UP AND ROBBED OUTSIDE FIRM'S OFFICE

Two Men Seize Her at Alley, Grab $35, Partly Hers, and Escape.

Miss Ruth Maddox, 22 years old, of 2824A Caroline street, cashier for the Claes & Lehnbeuter Fixture Manufacturing Co., Seventh street and Russell avenue, was held up by two men as she was passing the alley behind the company's office at 2:05 this afternoon, and was robbed of $20 belonging to the company and $15 of her own money.

Miss Maddox was returning to the office from a bank where she had deposited several checks for the company, had drawn the $20 from the company's account and had transacted a bit of personal business. She carried a paper folder containing bank books and the money on her arm. As she was passing the alley the men stepped out. One threw his arm about her neck and the other snatched the folder. They ran east on Russell avenue and escaped.

Denies Shoals Bribe Story.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 10.—R. E. Steiner, an attorney of Montgomery County, Ala., appeared today before the House Military Committee and entered a sweeping denial of inferences in newspaper dispatches based on a statement issued by the American Bureau Federation that he had offered a "virtual bribe" to the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation to block Henry Ford's offer of the Government for its Muscle Shoals projects. Steiner said the "virtual bribe" statement was an "infamous lie."

MME. LEBAUDY AND DAUGHTER DISAPPEAR

Latter's Husband, Detective Agency Head in Paris, Puts Scores of Men on Case.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

PARIS, April 15.—The search for Mme. Jacques Lebaudy, widow of the "Emperor of the Sahara," and her daughter, Jacqueline, 17 years old, the wife of Roger Sudreau, has revealed the fact that Mme. Lebaudy was betrothed to her son-in-law's father.

The two women disappeared from a French sanatorium and, when last seen, were in the company of Col. Born, a retired artillery officer, who also cannot be located.

Young Sudreau, one of the heads of the Harris Detective Agency, the biggest in France, has placed scores of his men on the trail. He and his father have gone to the country supposedly to run down a clew. The young man, who married Jacqueline, a beauty and heiress to her father's millions, only three months ago, says he will prosecute Mme. Lebaudy for abducting his wife unless the two return at once.

The young husband believes the women fell under the influence of an Egyptian fortune teller, who told them Sudreau had not been true to his wife. He feels sure she would return to him if she were not prevented by her mother.

Paris papers say Jacqueline only married Sudreau so she could obtain control of her father's estate, estimated at as high as $50,000,000, which, as a minor, should could not do unaided.

Mrs. Lebaudy was the wife of Jacques Lebaudy, self-styled "Emperor of the Sahara," whom she killed a little over three years ago. At the trial she was freed on a plea of self-defense.

MAN SHOT TO DEATH BY WIFE

By the Associated Press.

TOLEDO, O., April 15.—John H. Tepper, 35 years old, proprietor of three Toledo restaurants and one in Indianapolis, was shot and fatally wounded by his wife here last night. Tepper and his wife had been separated for more than a year, following the filing of divorce proceedings by Mrs. Tepper, in which she mentioned another woman.

According to the police, Tepper was seated at a table with a woman companion and Mrs. Tepper and another woman were at a nearby table. Tepper left his seat to answer the telephone, police say, when his wife stepped behind him and fired a revolver. The bullet lodged near Tepper's heart and he died shortly after arriving at a hospital. Tepper formerly was a waiter and his wife a waitress. His companion, who was held for questioning, gave her name as Minnie Stewart, an employee of a Detroit hotel.

POLICE SERGEANT CITED FOR ALLEGED UNBECOMING CONDUCT

Patrolman Objects to Language Used by Cornelius Meehan in Dispute Over $50 Reward.

Said Sgt. Cornelius Meehan to Patrolman Fred Boehmer: "Have you spent that $50 yet?"

Patrolman Boehmer: "No, but my wife did."

Sgt. Meehan: "Well, if she did, she spent my money."

For his end of the foregoing brief colloquy Sgt. Meehan must appear before the Board of Police Commissioners tomorrow on a charge of conduct unbecoming a police officer.

The conversation occurred last week on a Weston car and pertained to a reward of $50 collected last December by Patrolman Boehmer for recovering a stolen automobile from in front of Sgt. Meehan's home, 3955 Maffitt avenue.

Sgt. Meehan asserted that he "saw it first" and telephoned to a police station that the car was parked in front of his home. A few minutes later Patrolman Boehmer, walking the beat, ran across the car, returned it to its owner and collected the reward.

Sgt. Meehan said he was entitled to at least half the reward, but Patrolman Boehmer could not see it that way.

INSPECTOR FINDS LOOTED CAR WHEN HE BEGINS MAIL CHECK

Believed Post Sealed in Car May Have Been Tossed Out on Trip West.

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Ia., April 10.—Robbery of a mail car containing parcel post matter, loss of which may be heavy, was disclosed here early today when an inspector, arriving to check the contents of the car, found the seal on the door broken and the car looted. The car was sealed at New York.

Officials advanced the theory that the car may have been entered at Chicago, the mail sorted and valuable packages tossed out along the route from Chicago to Council Bluffs to accomplices of the looters.

One of Her Costumes

—is a three-piece cape dress, of course. Her trousseau would never be complete without this straight-line frock of brilliant silk or wool, with its dashing cavalier cape to match. Some are shown in velette in plain or Paisley designs. And they are priced as low as $7.50.

Costume Salon and Misses' Dress Shop—Third Floor.

After the Festivities

—and the biggest moment of all has passed, she'll be only too grateful to spend her leisure hours on her chaise longue, in the most delightful silken negligee she could find. One of her favorites is of peachblow satin, finished with fringe and quaint varicolored silk roses on the long scarf collar, $25.

$55,000 DAMAGE IN DOWNTOWN FIRE

Heaviest Loss at 410 North Twelfth Street in Women's Ready-to-Wear Establishment.

Fire of undetermined origin caused damage estimated at $55,000 to $65,000 to firms occupying the five-story building at 410 North Twelfth street, shortly after noon yesterday, the heaviest damage being in the women's ready-to-wear establishment of Norman J. Premlinger & Co. on the third floor, where the fire was discovered.

Premlinger declared the damage there would run between $50,000 and $60,000, a great part of it represented in women's coats and dresses owned by Eastern houses. Damage to his own stock he put at $5000, with $2500 for the fixtures. He said his loss was insured, but did not know whether the Eastern firms had insurance on their goods.

Other damage included $1000 to the contents of the first and second floors, occupied by the Hob Nob Cafe, and $1000 to the building, owned by Louis Friedman, E. Horn of the M. & E. Horn Co. women's garments, on the fourth floor, said the damage there, mostly by smoke, would not reach $5000.

SECOND BURCH TRIAL ON TODAY

Had Been Interrupted to Investigate Alleged Testimony of Jurors.

By the Associated Press.
LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 10.—The second trial of Arthur C. Burch, charged with the murder of J. Belmont Kennedy, is scheduled to start all over again today. Sixty-five veniremen have been summoned. Thomas L. Woolwine, District Attorney, said he might be present today to assist A. S. Keyes, deputy, who was in charge of the trial when it was halted for an investigation of the questioning of jurors by private detectives employed by the District Attorney.

PART TWO.

"What Will Russia Do?" on Every Tongue at Genoa, Writes John Maynard Keynes

Noted British Publicist Finds an Atmosphere of Intrigue and Mystery as Notable Conference Opens

Membership Greater Than League of Nations, and Opportunities Are Vaster at This Time—Will It Bring Back to Europe Its Lost Fragment?

By JOHN MAYNARD KEYNES, M. A. C. B.
(Fellow and Bursar of King's College, Cambridge, Editor Economic Journal (London), author Economic Consequences of the Peace and a Revision of the Treaty.)

(Copyright, by the Press and the Pulitzer Publishing Companies, The New York World and the Post-Dispatch.)

GENOA, April 10.

It is natural to approach Genoa with skepticism and doubt. There is not much flourish of trumpets at this time. There is no chorus of "complete accord," millennium expectations and prospective triumphs. Instead, disses and grumblings at the limitations, prophesying of emptiness and fiasco.

The British Prime Minister steps on the stage no longer clothed in imperial purple with emblems of victory and omnipotence, but in drab garments as an itinerant friar, weary, sorrowful for the world, a preacher, or another Charles the Fifth, on his way to a monastery of Yuste, stopping at Genoa en route.

It is like a change of costume and a change of voice, but will Lloyd George be ready to run the risk or will he repeat in April, 1922, the default of March, 1919? On his answer to this question the interest of Genoa depends.

Two Parties in Death Struggle. It may be a dull, drawn-out affair, but it is a bog of detail, but our friar has a fine pulpit presence and a strong voice; Charles, with the world behind him, has little to lose.

There are two parties in Europe, two attitudes, two impulses, and it is time they joined issue, deceitful gestures of agreement, where none exists, even if they served some purpose once, are not useful now.

I hope at Genoa differences of opinion be allowed to come to the surface instead of festering in the body, if rival policies for Europe can appear in distinct outlines, we will have made progress, even though nothing is agreed upon and nothing signed.

Where existing treaties are concerned, a contract is necessary between all parties concerned, but with economic questions of trade and currency, universal adoption of a scheme is not essential.

A currency union for re-establishing gold standard customs and a treaty of reciprocal trade and reciprocal release from unnecessary impediments to movement of goods and persons; a commercial agreement for trade under special safeguards between nations of participating Powers and those of Russia or an incorporated trading body for aiding the movement of capital and credit to impoverished areas—each of these things might be useful even if some Powers preferred to stand aside.

Let those who like them come in and those who do not stay out.

How Good May Come of It. The right procedure at Genoa would be that the few Powers who agree fundamentally on important economic matters should lay their scheme on the table and gain for it what support they can.

If unanimity is sought by substituting vague and empty formulas for proposals of substance, then nothing whatever will result but words and disillusionment.

But if a policy of peace and reconstruction can be given sharper outline, we may discover who are its real friends and thus organize an alignment of European opinion on matters of detail it is not impossible something useful may be achieved.

It is not foolish, therefore to be at the outset a little interested in Genoa. Yet if he is to escape disillusionment we must admit immense disadvantages from which the conference suffers. In my own judgment, it is premature in point of time, it should have been held six months later after careful preparation on the technical side and after prior arrangement with the United States on the diplomatic side. It should have been without those limitations on the subjects of its agenda which are differently interpreted in different quarters and are certain to lead to ill feeling and charges of bad faith.

Opening in a Bad Atmosphere. Psychologically the conference opens in a bad atmosphere; intellectually it is ill prepared. Nor can anyone who is experienced in other international meetings look forward to this one without pathetic indignation. The spectacle of nations classified into their separate species of statesman, experts and secretaries assembled around a green baize table in polyglot multitude is likely to be an epitome of the vanities and divisions of mankind.

Political and diplomatic considerations will also react indubitably on economic schemes under the surveillance, amidst dark intrigue European diplomats are playing their old games. Combinations are being ten-enhanced if other Powers refuse them disarmament by land raises far more difficult questions as the League of Nations has discovered, and it is hard to believe material progress can be made. Genoa will do well to keep this subject alone. The third item of the outline of the agenda runs, "essential conditions for the re-establishment of confidence without injury to existing treaties," and the Supreme Council communiqué of Jan. 21 amplified this to the effect that it will be among the essential objects of the conference "to secure without injury to the provisions of existing treaties essential conditions for the re-establishment of confidence between nations without which international commerce cannot revive." These sentences exclude revision of the peace treaties. But who supposed a conference of this description at which neutrals, former enemies and bolsheviks sit in equality could possibly be charged with such a task? The sentences are carefully worded.

Keynes to Write of Genoa Conference for Post-Dispatch

JOHN MAYNARD KEYNES, Europe's foremost writer on economic matters, author of "The Economic Consequences of the Peace" and "A Revision of the Treaty," will write his impressions of the Genoa conference for the Post-Dispatch. His first article is presented herewith.

Lloyd George stated categorically in the House of Commons in rebuttal of rumors to the contrary, that "there were no fresh limitations introduced at the Boulogne conversations." It is all summarized, he continued, in phrases quoted above. It is, therefore, as competent for the Genoa conference to discuss the chain of unresolvable paper indebtedness between former enemies and former allies, and to recommend general principles of release, as it is for them to consider analogous indebtedness of Russia and international debts which are the subject of treaty. The powers of the Reparation Commission allow wide latitude within the orbit of the treaty. The conference cannot touch these matters, but can bring them to the test of free and open debate without infringing the existing rights of any one.

The Chancellor of the British Exchequer, before the conference of Allied Finance Ministers at Paris in March, certain proposals on these subjects of which the substance had been communicated through the press, but which have not attracted the attention they deserve. Perhaps the Genoa conference may take up this scheme, in which event I will return to it in detail in a later article. Yet it is necessary to add that Chancellor's last speech before the Foreign Affairs Committee of the Italian chamber does not entirely corroborate Lloyd George's statement that no new limitations were introduced at Boulogne, on subjects to be discussed at Genoa.

If reparations and interrelated debts are not even to be mentioned, then, indeed, the conference, except in the treatment of Russia, will sink into futile unreality.

Differs From Its Predecessors. The Genoa conference differs fundamentally from its predecessors, because, for the first time, reparations, the right and the duty to do so, are being brought to the attention of the world. It is a council of Europe, not a council of the allies, as the League of Nations. By this fact we are faced with a new and unknown balance of opinion, sentiment and authority.

What part will neutral nations play? Will they throw the weight of their influence decidedly, or will they maintain the still unbroken policy of reserve which for four years they have thought prudent?

Now a Confused Unwieldy Mass. But what do we know of the emassaries of that lost fragment of Europe bring with them? The vast, uncertain possibilities of this new contact I must keep for a later article. But we must not forget the Russians. Their records and characters do not suggest they will miss their opportunities or fail to throw upon the table something new and striking. They have wit and knowledge and experience. Will they use their gifts and chances to make bad jokes at our expense? Or are they serious and even disposed, perhaps, to restore that fragment to Europe? Genoa is a confused, unwieldy mass. It may meet disastrous failure or likelier boredom and impotence. But new elements are collected there. A powerful statement will be held and determined and ready to risk his prestige will find material to his hand.

Tendency to Collectivism. "What else is it but the tendency to excessive collectivism when men enforce laws, not by the normal sanctions that have been provided, but by political coercion? A man cannot be reformed from within. You may put a man into a straight jacket, yet you will not prevent his mind from being that of a rebel. You may saddle a man with hall and chain, and yet you will not prevent him from planning unmentionable crimes in the interior of his soul. What else is it but the tendency towards excessive paternalism when we pass laws upon laws upon countless matters that pertain to individual conduct, and are then content to leave them as paper legislation to be carried out by the conscientious, but to be comfortably disregarded by the unscrupulous."

Man Cannot Be Reformed From Without, but From Within, Priest Asserts.

The Rev. Father A. M. Schwittalla, S. J., in his closing Lenten lecture at St. Francis Xavier's Church last night, spoke of the "dangers of collectivism," following somewhat the line of argument which the Post-Dispatch has developed in recent editorials on the "March Toward Federal Empire."

Cartoon Daring as True. "In one of our dailies there appeared recently a cartoon as daring as it was true. It was a warning against the dangers of the day. It represented the side of a galley, in the lowest gallery of which sat American citizens, pulling with bulging muscles at the rope of the ship of state. And over their head there rose a gallery upon gallery of that ship, each labeled with one of the paternalistic laws that are now being enacted. It was a warning of the danger of the ship of state, in its worst aspects, too, when Congress is trying, through the inspiration of interested parties and office seekers, to create bureaus upon bureaus, the full meaning of each of which is only this, that the State is to do for us, what each citizen has the right and the duty to do for himself and for others."

Canadian Independence Urged. Parliament Member Advocates Cutting Loose From England.

MONTREAL, April 10.—Independence for Canada was advocated by W. F. Carroll, member of Parliament for Cape Breton and Richmond, in an address Saturday before the Reform Club, in which he contended Canada was not a nation although enjoying political and religious freedom.

After declaring that nationhood would develop greater statesmen, Mr. Carroll said: "I am talking with you towards excessive paternalism, when we pass laws upon laws upon countless matters that pertain to individual conduct, and are then content to leave them as paper legislation to be carried out by the conscientious, but to be comfortably disregarded by the unscrupulous."

This main auditorium in Cleveland's new $6,350,000 Public Hall, will accommodate the country's largest conferences, conventions and theatrical productions. It has a seating capacity (arena and balconies) of 12,500. The arena has a clear floor space of 30,000 square feet. The stage, which is large enough to seat 1000 people, has exceptionally complete facilities, including numerous chorus and dressing rooms. A mammoth pipe organ permits of unusual entertainment.

Conan Doyle Comes to America to Explain His Views on Spiritualism

Author of Sherlock Holmes, Who Says He Has Communicated With the Dead, Brings Family With Him.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 10.—Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, D. L., LL.D., creator of "Sherlock Holmes," novelist, lecturer, psychic, and Spiritualist, who says he has communicated with the dead, arrived here yesterday with his son, Kingsley, and his wife, Mrs. Doyle, who is accompanied by his three children, Denis, 13 years old; Malcolm, 11, and Miss Nina, 9.

He is here to lecture to the American people on Spiritualism and to demonstrate that it is not a theory but an actual state. He became interested in Spiritualism more than 20 years ago, but following the death of his son, Kingsley, delved deeper into its mysteries until he, according to his own statements, has been in communication with his dead, 20 in number.

Summing up Spiritualism, Sir Arthur declares, with firmness, that it is possible to communicate with the dead.

"In the first place," he said, "successful communication with the spirits depends much upon the medium. It is a very delicate matter and some are more delicately sensed than others. Those are the successful mediums. Many mothers and wives in England have been in successful communication with the dead. Spiritualism is spreading fast in England, particularly among those who have lost loved ones in battle. I think the same condition obtains here, and I will look into the matter first hand."

Was Born a Roman Catholic. "I was born a Roman Catholic, but early in my life gave up that form for the higher belief I am now practicing. I believe in a Supreme Being—Infinite, omniscient and omnipresent."

Sir Arthur was asked if it were a personal God. "No," he answered. "It is a great force, Spiritualism, as a whole, somewhat of the Unitarian type. I know what my fate will be in the next world; I know every detail of the afterworld, of what will happen after what we call death—happiness, sorrow, the things that will happen in the next world plane than I do if I were to be carried and dropped into the wilds of Asia or Africa, knowing, as I do, the tribes and conditions. The first sphere of the life to come is not unlike the present life, but higher, happier and free from pain and tribulation. Everything here has its equivalent hereafter."

Those who do not believe will have to wait for the knowledge to come to them. They will have to develop the spiritual side while waiting for a full appreciation of the new sphere of life. In spiritualism fear of death is absolutely eliminated.

Lectured to the Soldiers. "Near my home during the war was a camp. I lectured to the boys who were about to go to the front, and many of them became converts to the belief. After they had gone to the front I received many letters from them stating that the trenches were entirely devoid of the fear of death, and that life in its present aspect. Many who were heretofore skeptics have recanted and come into the folds of the new belief."

Sir Arthur said that he first took the study of spiritualism 26 years ago. As a physician he said he be-

CLEVELAND'S NEW PUBLIC HALL COSTING $6,350,000 TO BE OPENED SATURDAY

Main Auditorium of Building Dedicated to Social Progress, Industrial Achievement and Civic Interest, Will Seat 12,500.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. CLEVELAND, O., April 10.—Dedicated to social progress, industrial achievement and civic interest, the new Cleveland public hall, which will be thrown open April 15 to Cleveland's citizens with whose money it was erected, epitomizes the spirit which instigated and carried through to completion one of the greatest civic projects in America.

The idea of a civic center, adequate to the needs of a large city and worthy of the entertainment of its convention and exhibition guests, has long been cherished in the "Forest City." It was born 54 years ago, when the saengerfest brought such a tremendous influx of visitors to the city that a vast temporary building had to be constructed to care for the assemblage. Other notable gatherings came, enjoyed Cleveland's hospitality, and left with pleasant recollections. Their advent and their sojourn, however, put Cleveland on the pin of their collar to provide accommodations. Her guests were satisfied, but not Cleveland.

This idea, long considered, crystallized in 1915, when Mayor Harry L. Davis, now Governor of Ohio, called into conference the heads of 20 representative civic organizations and charged them with the consummation of the long-cherished desire.

Industrial Exposition. Several years previous to this, in 1909, the Chamber of Commerce had sponsored an industrial exposition embracing the city's products, which, it is claimed, has never been equaled by an exhibit of its kind. Successful in every way, the committee behind that exhibit was constrained to turn thousands away from the doors for lack of facilities to house them. Again the agitation for an adequate place of assemblage arose. The exposition committee resolved itself into the Public Hall Committee of the chamber. One of its members, William Ganson Rose, was commissioned to make a survey of the problem and visited 17 cities of the country. The committee's intention was to handle the problem on a private business basis, but the enormity of the task persuaded them that it must be a civic enterprise. Again the idea was allowed to lie dormant.

The upshot of the 1915 meeting with Mayor Davis was the organization of the Committee of 100 organizations, embracing every society of civic consequence in the city. Rose was named chairman of this body, and with him were associated as officers and members of the Executive Committee men of many walks in life—capitalists, labor leaders, editors, clergymen and professional men of all callings. Among these were Myron T. Herrick, Ambassador to France; William G. Mather, millionaire ore operator; Francis F. Preuss, capitalist and professor; and time is ripe to put across the public hall," said Mayor Davis. "Gentlemen, it's up to you to do it."

Publicity Fund Subscribed. A fund of $12,000 was subscribed for publicity and promotion purposes and the Public Hall Committee set out to work. Over 200 public meetings were held, at which sentiment was shaped favorably. City Council drafted a bond issue of $2,500,000 for subscription to the hall. The two big schools of the cult in England are the National Spiritual Union and the London Spiritual Alliance.

Other than his talk to reporters as the Baltic came up the bay, Sir Arthur had prepared a statement for the press. It read: "That, making every allowance for fraud (which had been greatly exaggerated) and for self-deception (which is far more common), there remains a great residuum of proved fact which makes this psychic movement the most serious attempt ever made to place religion upon a basis of definite proof, which is all that earnest minds desire. It is the one great final antidote to materialism, which is the cause of most of our recent world troubles."

Degraded by Some Persons. "If we can make this good—and the case has only to be clearly stated to be proved—then surely America has good cause to be proud that this great re-statement of the fundamentals of religion should have come upon her soil. It has been degraded by some who believed in it, and degraded by all who did not, but the time has come when it is to be freed from its degradation and to be free from its degradation."

"High spirits did not redound upon the earth in order to tell fortunes or to advise on business matters, such uses being a curse with them. The true aim of all communication with spirits is consolation, knowledge of spiritual matters, including conditions of life after death, and self-improvement."

"Phenomena were elementary things, useful as signals which call our attention to the unseen, but tending too often to distract attention from the real spiritual knowledge to which they should be an introduction."

Clashes He Will Visit. The Doyle will be in America three months. They will visit Philadelphia, Boston, Washington, St. Louis, Chicago and possibly other cities. Sir Arthur does not intend to seek to organize spiritualism in this country, he said, but merely to explain it.

Location of Public Hall. The public hall is located in the heart of the downtown section, within easy walking distance of all the principal hotels, public and office buildings and the retail and wholesale shopping districts.

The building is designed in the Italian renaissance style of architecture, and is of modern fireproof steel construction. The interior is faced with marble, tile and decorative plaster. Care has been taken to make the latter pleasing and acceptable to the eye. Battleship gray is the predominant color. Scrolls and art work in pale blue adorn the balustrade which borders the balconies. The arch over the stage is decorated with gold work and colors which harmonize with the color scheme of the interior. The color scheme gives the interior a softness and warmth unusual in auditoriums and halls of such magnitude. The design and architectural effect of the exterior harmonizes with the county courthouse, city hall and Federal building already erected and forming a part of Cleveland's famous group of public buildings.

Adapted to Conventions. The building is adapted to all manner of conventions, entertainments, balls, carnivals, circuses, plays and pageants, musicals and grand opera. Spacious stairways and ramps give free passage from floor to floor, and the entire building may be emptied in a remarkably short time.

Exhibitions of aeronautics, automobiles, machinery, food and farm products, building materials, textile products, plumbing and heating and the like may be shown to advantage. The color scheme outlay for installation requirements. Its close proximity to railway freight depots also proves advantageous where exhibits are involved.

The main auditorium in the public hall has a seating capacity of 12,500, approximately 6000 being portable seats on the main floor and 5500 stationary seats in the balconies. The auditorium is artificially illuminated by a flood of soft light diffused through a field of glass panels in the ceiling. Every convenience attendant to large gatherings is provided, including numerous large committee rooms for the conference.

A pipe organ, said to be one of the finest in the United States, has been installed. It has 10,010 pipes, 150 direct speaking stops, and cost $100,000. The console is mounted on an elevator, so that it may be lowered below the arena floor when necessary. The echo organ is located in the rear of the auditorium, 300 feet distant from the console.

The stage is one of the largest in the country, being 100 feet wide and 56 feet in depth. It has an opening 72 feet in width, surmounted by a high arch. The stage may also be used as a convention room, seating more than 1000 persons. Included in the stage equipment are two passenger elevators and a lift. Also, conveniently at hand, are several chorus and dressing rooms, fully equipped with the most modern comforts and conveniences.

Exhibition Hall in Basement. Exhibition hall, located in the basement, but of easy access from the main auditorium, is primarily intended for displays. The architects have succeeded in making it one of the most modern and complete exhibit halls in the country. Every known convenience and requirement has been installed to secure maximum efficiency and range of usefulness. This hall is 100 feet wide and 235 feet long, thus containing 23,553 square feet of floor space. Service stations attached to building columns contain connections for hot and cold water, sewage, steam, gas, electricity for illumination and power, vacuum, compressed air and telephone. Two adjacent rooms provide facilities for conferences or lectures or may be used for private or individual displays.

By utilizing the arena floor of the auditorium 29,640 additional and unobstructed square feet of floor space is provided for exhibition. This hall of total area of 53,193 square feet is conveniently available upon the auditorium and exhibition hall floor levels.

Numerous ramps and stairways for visitors provide ready circulation between exhibition and auditorium floors and the street. Suitable doorways and ramps of easy grade admit of large or heavy exhibits being transported safely and expeditiously to the two exhibit floors.

On the second floor are several conference or committee rooms having natural as well as artificial light; locker rooms which may be used for storage purposes; and the general offices of the building. Entrance to the upper and lower balconies is from the third floor where also are conveniently located numerous checkrooms and lockers. Provision has been made for telephone booths, taxicab offices, ladies and gentlemen's retiring rooms, shower baths, lockers, checkrooms, telegraph stations, a barber shop and many other conveniences for guests. The most modern of ventilating and sanitary systems are used and its appointments in this respect are complete in every detail.

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM.

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles, that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news, always be drastically independent, never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

The Only Henry.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
THINKING people in this country are agreed that we need and must have an economic leader, and I believe we have located him in the person of Henry Ford.

The most necessary, the most important and the most far-reaching thing in this country to do—and to know how to do—is to grow the greatest possible amount of food for the human body on the least possible area of soil with the least possible amount of labor, expense and impoverishment to the soil. Now, then, if Mr. Ford, who is financially able and willing, can "lead kindly light" and show us just how to accomplish the above purpose, why not accept him now?

Our farmers haul their cotton to town and sell it for 15 to 18 cents per pound and then go up to a local merchant and pay $4.00 a bale for it back in domestic cotton. Now, then, one of the other of two things must happen or we are a bunch of "gone gossams." The farmer must either get control of this machinery and share in the profits of the finished products of his labor or turn this machinery over to an individual like Henry Ford, who agrees to finish same and sell it at actual cost, f. o. b. Muscle Shoals, plus 5 per cent.

Thomas A. Edison was asked once what he thought of the airplane and he said: "Gentlemen, who is 50 per cent man and 50 per cent machine. When you reverse this, I'll go up." Mr. Ford has achieved wonders in the motor world because he has made a car 50 per cent machine and 50 per cent man, and I believe he will exercise the same methods at Muscle Shoals after these properties have been turned over to him, and when he taps the going to throw her out of gear, we believe that that grand old humanitarian will be found at the steering wheel of the most gigantic turbine in the world, shouting and proclaiming to his disciples and down-drooping fellow man: "Come, all ye that wish to labor and be saved, the good and necessary things that come from the farm and factory, and I will give you them."

Dangerous Situation.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
THE attention of the Police Department is directed to the reckless way that traffic on King's highway from its intersection of Lindell boulevard south is permitted.

Because King's highway happens to be decorated in its center by an ornamental grass plot, may it lawfully be used by automobiles as two separate streets going north and south on either section? In crossing this one street westward we are exposed to the traffic from six different directions. It is a dangerous situation.

DAVID TREICHLINGER.

Wants to Be Shown.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
I WISH to state that in this country had a few more men like Senator Reed, we would be in an awful fix.

I should like very much for some of these ardent admirers of Senator Reed to tell me some of the great things he has done for the good of humanity, show me some good constructive legislation that he is the author of.

I have voted the Democratic ticket for 25 years, but should the Democratic party nominate Reed, I would vote for him. I will vote any ticket but the Democratic one.

J. D.

Art Should Teach.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
REFERRING to your editorial on "Art by Referendum" it seems impractical from an educational standpoint for fictionists to give the public what it wants.

The public, as a rule does not possess that knowledge of art as the artist does who has specialized in his chosen field and who is therefore capable of rendering art in its true sense.

The artist should be an educator and it ought to be his duty to teach the public what true art is so that they may appreciate it. It is unfair to the public to give it what it wants when better can be had. Life's drama does not always have a happy ending and it is quite proper for the novelist to give the public a novel food for serious thought occasionally. Hardy's "Return of the Native" has no happy ending, yet it is a masterpiece that has a lasting impression. NICK.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
WE wish it were possible for the Young Women's Christian Association to adequately thank the editors of all the St. Louis newspapers for the most splendid help which they so generously gave in connection with our finance campaign.

We do not believe the newspapers of any city in the United States surpass those of our city in granting such publicity, and every member of the association is full of grateful thanks.

RESPONSES TO OUR APPEAL.

The Post-Dispatch's appeal to Governors to halt the march toward Federal empire is working. The Sunday Post-Dispatch contained responses from eight Governors who commend the campaign against the centralization of powers formerly reserved to the states and indicate their willingness to oppose the tendency.

Gov. Campbell of Arizona says he has "viewed with much concern for some years increasing tendency on the part of the Federal Government to encroach on the powers of states," and approves our suggestion that this be made a subject of conference by Governors.

Gov. Robertson of Oklahoma, commending the Post-Dispatch for defending the people's rights says: "There is scarcely an activity in which the states engage but that through Federal aid or other Federal regulation the power of the states in effect is nullified and taken over by some bureau in Washington."

Gov. Baxter of Maine remarks: "This is a matter in which I have taken a great deal of interest and I am constantly bringing it to the attention of the citizens of Maine." He pledges his influence to make it a Republican issue in Maine.

Gov. McKelvie of Nebraska declares that "a continuation of the present tendency of the Federal Government to encroach upon the intended constitutional rights of the states is fraught with the most dangerous possibilities."

Gov. San Souci of Rhode Island says: "I am of the opinion that one of the gravest problems that we are facing in this country today is the steady drift toward a centralized government."

Gov. Hardwick of Georgia, calling attention to the tremendous and menacing advance of Federal power, declares he "unhesitatingly and emphatically indorses the position of the Post-Dispatch."

Gov. Spruell of Pennsylvania says: "You are perfectly right in your discussion of the invasion of the functions, the revenues and the responsibilities of the states by the Federal Government," and adds that he is active in opposing it.

President Harding, through Secretary Christian, expresses his sympathy with the Post-Dispatch's apprehensions and "thinks that there ought to be at the same time an effort made to halt the persistent effort to reach the Federal Treasury in paying for public service which very frequently deserves to be a burden of the separate commonwealths."

Representative Greene of Vermont remarks: "I am glad enough that influential newspapers like yours have lined up in this cause. It is high time. More power to you."

Representative A. Turner Logan of Tennessee, commending the Post-Dispatch "most heartily and sincerely," remarks: "I do not think the papers of the country, and especially the great journals like your own, can possibly emphasize too much the dangers of the tremendous advances we have already made and are steadily making to a completely centralized form of government, with the sovereignty of the states almost wholly lost and their reduction to a position little better than that of provinces."

Senator Reed, remarking that the Post-Dispatch's editorial article is "very worthy and very able," had the entire article inserted in the Congressional Record on Friday last.

It is gratifying to find that approval of the appeal comes from the Governors of New England and other Northern states as well as Southern states. There is nothing sectional in the issue of Federal encroachment presented by the Post-Dispatch. It concerns all the states and there is abundant evidence of the attainment of the Post-Dispatch's purpose to arouse public attention and concentrate public thought on the dangerous tendency of the Federal Government to overthrow the constitutional rights of the people to local self-government and the constitutional powers of the states.

SCIENTIFIC EQUALIZATION.

Attorney-General Barrett proposes a bipartisan body of four experts to take the place of the State Tax Commission and the Board of Equalization. This is the Attorney-General's remedy for the persistent efforts of counties to escape taxation by undervaluing their property and attributing the action of the Board of Equalization to partisan politics.

Any promising scheme to put equalization of taxes on a scientific basis, of course, is to be desired. There is more than the elimination of partisanship to be considered in putting taxation adjustment into the hands of a board of experts. The service now required in the interest of equitable assessment is more than can be undertaken by the Board of Equalization, which is composed of State officials whose regular duties have a prior claim on their time. As the Tax Commission has only advisory powers it cannot be held sufficiently responsible for results.

The work of equalizing 114 counties, of course, is enormous. To expect it to be done in odd hours as a side issue by any board of nonexperts is absurd. A competent board of experts, insusceptible to partisanship, would save to overtaxed communities many times its expense and should put tax assessments on a sound basis.

THE CHALLENGE OF THE FACTS.

The line of least resistance for the Government and Congress in the settlement of the coal strike would be to let matters lapse until the miners are starved into accepting any terms they can secure for the time being. Such a settlement would accomplish nothing but a temporary production. It would accomplish nothing for the public in the way of establishing a standard of reasonable prices, and it would mean the resumption, sooner or later, of the struggle between operators and miners, with more strikes and "rest" periods.

The questions being put to witnesses by members of the House Labor Committee suggest that the committee is interested only in an old-fashioned settlement. It would require little effort. It would arouse no new controversies or political enemies. It would allow Congressmen to devote their normal portion of time to seeing and writing constituents, passing bonus bills and new dry laws and, in general, keeping themselves secure in the saddle unharassed by the nation's economic problems, which, if neglected, mean suffering, discouragement and despair.

John Brophy, district president of the United Mine Workers of America, made some significant statements last Friday before the House committee. He said that an industry which gives only 100 days' work a year needs a reorganization. "To get this," he declared, "we must have the facts ascertained by an impartial Federal commission. The miners demand a searchlight on the industry that will expose its book-keeping and its wastes, and determine whether it cannot pay a living wage and yet give its products to the people at a reasonable price."

The operators, said Brophy, have resisted legally, through the National Coal Association, all Government attempts to establish costs and profits in the industry. To all references to the reasonableness of present wages and their part in present coal prices Brophy's answer was: "Let us have the facts ascertained by an official commission."

It is a good answer. It is the only answer that will lead to anything like a sound and permanent settlement. Whoever resists fact finding condemns his cause. If Congress fails to go to the heart of the coal-mine trouble it will convict itself of evasion of duty. If the operators adopt the policy of suppressing facts it means that they are making gains which they would not make were the facts known. The nation will pay inflated prices for fuel and will suffer from recurrent coal-mine strikes so long as its representatives shrink their obvious duty.

THE HUSBAND'S CHARTER.

A disquisition by an English Judge on the family purse and the entire domestic administration is described in a special cable to the Post-Dispatch as "the husband's charter." The opinion, or homily, was inspired by an action in which dressmakers sued for payment of gowns purchased by the wife of Earl Cathcart, who subsequently was divorced and is now the wife of the Earl of Craven. Incidentally, the Court ventured that the gowns were bought for the then arranged elopement with the second Earl.

The Court held for the defendant, and for all luckless husbands or ex-husbands now or hereafter who may be afflicted with extravagant wives. The Court also ruled it to be the husband's right "to fix the standard of their domestic and social life." The Court held that a wife may not obligate her husband for debts beyond her allowance, and where the allowance is not agreed upon, but is fixed in amount the wife is deprived thereby of further pledging her husband's credit. In lay language the wife must be content with what her husband gives her.

Suppose, though, she isn't. What then? The Court anticipated such willfulness and provided against it by directing the attention of tradesmen to this construction and warning them they are taking chances if they go on any other assumption. In other words, the ancient commercial injunction, caveat emptor, at last has a companion piece. Caveat vendor—let the seller beware—is now good law.

Besides rendering an epochal decision the Court moralized on the frailty whose name is woman. It was acknowledged that "prodigality is a feminine fault, but not a feminine necessity." Further, all wives, present and to be, were admonished that "extravagance is not the mark of a gentleman." Thrift marks the caste of Vere de Vere. Let woman fit from Earl to Earl if she will, but quietly, modestly, with the restraint of elegance. As for a discarded husband's paying for the trousseau of her inconsistency's second honeymoon—it isn't done.

JUST A MINUTE

PANTELEA.

NO. Luella.
Bell-shaped trousers
Have not rung
The bell at that.
Looks as if
The innovation
Sort of fell
A little flat.
Here and there
A darning dandy
Tries to lead us
On the style.
But the major
Part of mankind
Only shake
Their heads
And smile.

Truth to tell,
My little girl,
While we weary
Of the past,
What the tailors
Are proposing
Does not win us
Very fast.
Since we all
Aren't Charlie Chaplins,
While still
Envy our art,
Most of us
Are not ambitious
To be tailored
For the part.

Thus some college boy
Whose testing
Skirts the abyss
Of some favorite
Of fashion
Is responsible
For this.
Most men, strangely,
Somehow feeling
Not a little
Even drawn
To the venture.
Only wonder
How the dear boys
Get them on.

So we have it,
Sweet Luella:
Man is not
The prey of style.
True, his fashion
Slightly changes
Once in every While.
Even so.
Except the women
Followed after
Same as sheep.
Those originating
Fashions
Would not even Make their keep.

Once in seven Generations
Man embraces Something new;
Say a belt
For his suspender.
Or a square toe
On his shoe.
Meanwhile,
Let us look
At woman.
Fast in fashion's
Changing thrall,
Until oftentimes
We wonder
If she's wearing
Clothes at all.

STRAY THOUGHTS.

To punish men for violation of the prohibition law by deportation is to bestow what those who cannot be deported crave and have not—freedom.

That man in Albany, N. Y., who, with $15,000 on his person, went to a police station for a place to sleep, either knew too much about our big hotels or not enough about the police. But how he escaped the oil stock promoter is rather puzzling.

Poverty is no crime, but often it is a case of mistaken identity.

Garden seeds will soon begin to sprout—jokes. (This one hasn't sprouted yet.)

There is a sucker born every minute, they say, but birth control would be strongly objected to in certain quarters.

Time was when deportation was looked upon as punishment.

Only those who have succeeded can afford to utter the obvious. From the others neither matters.

Sir Superintendent of Schools Maddox, speaking before the grade teachers Saturday night, said: "In the most serious situations something good will arise. One of the banners used in the school tax campaign bore the words: 'Do you want to see the teachers starve?' Vote 'Yes.' That was written by one of your pupils. Does he get a number?"

IVERNESS.

If the Weather Man is sometimes evasive, what of this Kansas crop reporter:

"No one can prophesy as yet what the harvest will be," the report said. "Judging from present condition and past experience, it is safe to hazard the statement that the chances are at least equal that the State will produce more or less than 100,000,000 bushels."

What is your guess?

One year the youngsters of a certain Connecticut village met for the purpose of electing a captain of their baseball team for the coming season, and, since there were too many candidates for the post, trouble was expected. Youngster after youngster presented his qualifications for the honor, and the matter was still undecided when the son of the owner of the ball field stood up. He was a small, snub-nosed lad, with a plentiful supply of freckles, but he glanced about him with a dignified air of controlling the situation.

"I'm going to be captain this year," he announced, convincingly, "or else father's old bull is going to be turned into the field."

He was elected unanimously.—Harper's.

SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA HAD SUCCESSFUL

Organization Gave 31
in 17 Cities, Playing 1
35,000 Persons.

The St. Louis Symphony returned today from a tour of the Southwest during which it played between total of 35,000
concerts, in 17 towns and 11 cities. The tour was a success and the orchestra is paid for itself financially, a substantial contribution to the St. Louis Symphony orchestra said today.

An afternoon and evening concert was given in nearly all the cities visited, and the musicians paneled every day. The itinerary was as follows:

Mexico, Columbia and City, Mo.; Dallas, Texas;
Wichita, Kansas; Austin, Texas;
Port Arthur, Texas; New
Baton Rouge, Louisiana; Monroe, Louisiana; Jackson, Miss.;
Tenn.; and Cape Girardeau, Mo.

The tour was a tremendous success for the orchestra, said Art Gaines, secretary-manager, who accompanied the organization.

It has a personal note about it that has established a good foundation for future tours. Such encouragement all the way. The note of the orchestra's success is that it has a personal note about it that gets across the fact to audiences; sometimes the lacking before. Conductor G. G. G.

done this, and he scored a great personal success on the last of the series that he gave there, and brought on the largest audiences of the tour—
5,000 persons for the piano concerts. One of the greatest successes of the tour was the concert at New Orleans, where the audience was 5,000. Afterward the Philharmonic Society director decided to have come two da-years. Most of the towns were college towns, but the students the houses.

Without Unpleasant Incidents. The tour was without unpleasant incidents. Coming in from Texas, one of our interurban trains was delayed until 4 while 1,500 State college students sang songs to amuse themselves. Conductor G. G. G. and Gustafson and Steinfield, the piano until the instrument arrived. G. G. G. was soloist concert.

The smallest audiences were Baton Rouge, La., on account of a cloudburst. There were 400 there in the afternoon and 500 in the morning. There were 55 percent on the stage. That was the which made the trip, though the chestra numbers 11 in St. Louis.

I think this was as fine a tour as any I have ever seen. I am sure it was. St. Louis was met in the headlines of accounts of the orchestra's coming and of its performance, and I have a stack of clippings, with a slight defect.

The orchestra next Sunday begin a two weeks' tour of nine and Illinois towns.

SIR PATRICK MANSON DIES

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, April 10.—The deceased Sir Patrick Manson, 78, in L.
Saturday was announced in London Times yesterday morning.
The Times refers to Sir Patrick
"the father of tropical medicine," and that he was an active in diffusing disease. Sir Patrick had the United States in 1905.

Sir Patrick Manson was credited as a parasitologist. He first to enunciate the hypothesis the mosquito was the host of malaria parasites at one stage of its life, and thus an active in diffusing disease. Sir Patrick had the United States in 1905.

ROBBERS AT FILLING STATION
AFTER MANAGER IS ARRESTED

Policemen Fire at Three Men They Find at Place on Branch Street.

Melber Sharts, 39 years old, of 2820 Washington avenue, manager of an oil-filling station on Branch street, between Ninth and Eleventh streets, met a policeman at Broadway and Branch street at 12:15 a. m.
yesterday and said he had just had a struggle with a man who entered the filling station and demanded the cash. The man, he said, had jumped into an automobile and escaped. The policeman detected an odor of liquor and took Sharts to the Angelica street station. He admitted he had taken three drinks and was locked up.

At 2 a. m. a sergeant and a patrolman, approaching the Branch street filling station, saw an automobile standing in front of it, with a man in it. Another was coming from the station, and when he saw the policemen he called to a third, who came from the inside. The policeman fired and the man who had just come from the station fell. The other picked him up and put him in the automobile, which drove away, followed by a fusillade, 11 shots being fired.

In the station were found a hammer, two screw drivers, a chisel and a knife. The station had been entered by forcing the door. The outside door of the safe was not locked.
The robbers were working on the inside door when frightened away.
Sharts said there was $50 in the safe.
He was released at 8 a. m.

"Pep" Young Had a Narrow Escape From the Minors; the Athletics Have Claimed Him

Eight Runners Thrown Out At the Plate as Brownies Beat Cards in Series Final

Crowd of More Than 29,000 Persons Sees American Leaguers Cut Off Five and Cardinals Three Potential Runs by Brilliant Defense—Victory Gives City Title to Fohl's Men.

By J. Roy Stockton.

Brilliant throws, sailing home with unerring accuracy, daring slides into the plate, spectacular, though reckless base-running, and the largest crowd that ever gathered for a baseball game in St. Louis, ranked the final of the spring series between the Browns and Cardinals with the classic sporting events in the city's history.

It mattered not at all that the Browns, in winning, 5 to 3, were guilty of some very stupid work on the bases. And the five glaring errors in the box score only added to the excitement, made the play closer and gave more action to the affair.

And the fact that the pitching yesterday was mediocre made no difference, except that it made a royal contest out of what otherwise might have been a dull drab affair.

An idea of the spectacular nature of the struggle can be had from the following facts, describing the turmoil that held sway around home plate at Sportsman's Park during the battle:

Eight players were caught at home plate on brilliant throws.

George Sisler, star base runner, was nailed on three occasions, trying to score on hits or infield outs.

Kenneth Williams, Browns' left fielder, started two double plays and his fine throwing gave him two other assists.

Two Cardinals were caught at the plate in one inning, in such rapid succession that it almost constituted a double play.

There was a concentration of the factors which make for excitement. The victory, the third in the four games played this spring, permits the Browns to retain their title of city champions.

A Thriller All the Way.

As in all the previous games of the spring series, the teams were evenly matched in all departments. Each collected a dozen hits and the score was so close that the outcome was in doubt always and the crowd was tensely interested when Vangilder threw out Hornsby for the last play of the game.

Kenneth Williams, in addition to the fine throws which cut off several Cardinals runs, also stepped into the pitcher's box as a batter and it was his two-bagger into the overflow crowd in the seventh inning which gave the Browns two of their three runs which constituted their margin of victory.

As in Saturday's game the Cardinals started with a punch and were early favorites to win. They pounded Vangilder hard at the start and scored a run in the second and again in the third, after threatening in the first.

That first frame was a fine introduction. Tobin began by beating out a swinging bunt, only to be retired by Elberbe in a fast double play. Toporcer to Hornsby to Bottomly. Seaver grounded to Deak and the Cardinals came in to bat.

Seaverid Shares in Glory.

Heathcote fouled out, but Bottomly crashed a single to right. Stock followed with a single to center and Hornsby walked, filling the bases. Mueller sent a fly to left and Bottomly dashed for the plate. Williams made the catch among the spectators on the field and called the ball home. The leather took a hop away from the plate, but Seaverid snared it and threw himself at the plate in time to tag Bottomly just before he slid into the rubber.

In the second inning McHenry opened with a double, advanced on Toporcer's sacrifice and scored when Ansmith singled to left. Eddie, however, tried to stretch the hit and Williams' fine throw to McManus nailed him at second.

Errors Aid the Browns.

In the third the Browns began their scoring, aided by Brown's errors. Vangilder struck out, but Tobin and Elberbe walked. Staler singled to center and Mueller fumbled the ball. Tobin scored easily and Elberbe reached third. Then Hornsby muffed Mueller's throw to second base and Elberbe also crossed the rubber. Staler going to second. Williams singled to right and Heathcote's throw to Ansmith caught Staler trying to score. Ansmith's work in this play was brilliant.

In the half of the third the Cards scored another and had another man nailed at the plate. Heathcote doubled, advanced on Bottomly's sacrifice and scored on Stock's single to center. Hornsby was hit by a pitched ball and Mueller walked, filling the stacks. This time McHenry hit to Williams and his fine throw completed another double play, Stock being caught at the plate.

Two at Plate in Fifth.

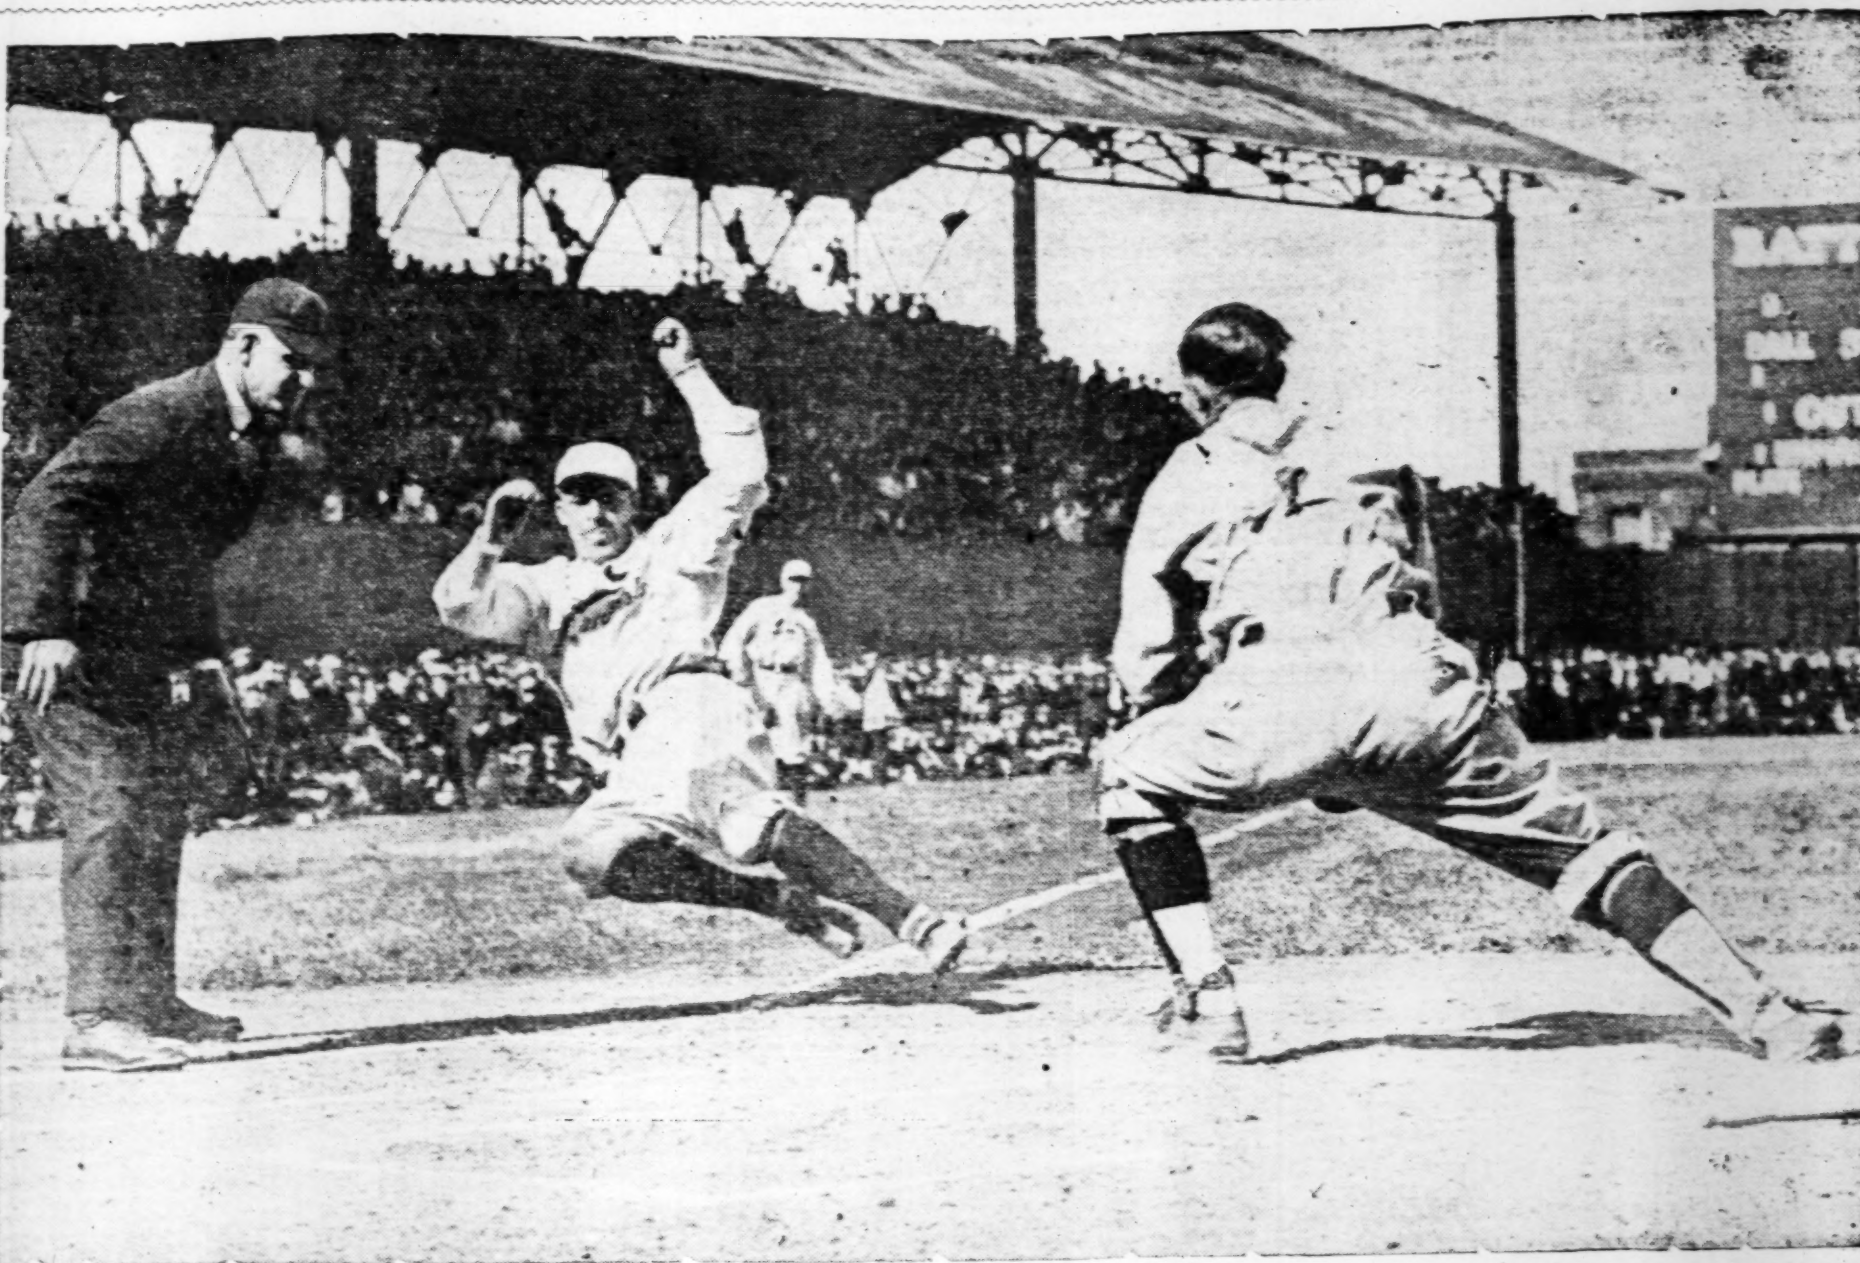

Vangilder prevented further scoring until the eighth, when Mueller's double, an infield out and Tobin's muffed throw gave the Cards a run.

The Browns' half of the fifth inning was a thriller. Vangilder opened with a single to right and took second on Tobin's hit to center. Elberbe bunted and Ansmith's quick fielding and throw forced Vangilder at third. Staler singled to center and Tobin scored. Elberbe took third and Staler second on the throw-in. Then came the play. Williams hit to Toporcer and Elberbe was caught sliding into the plate.

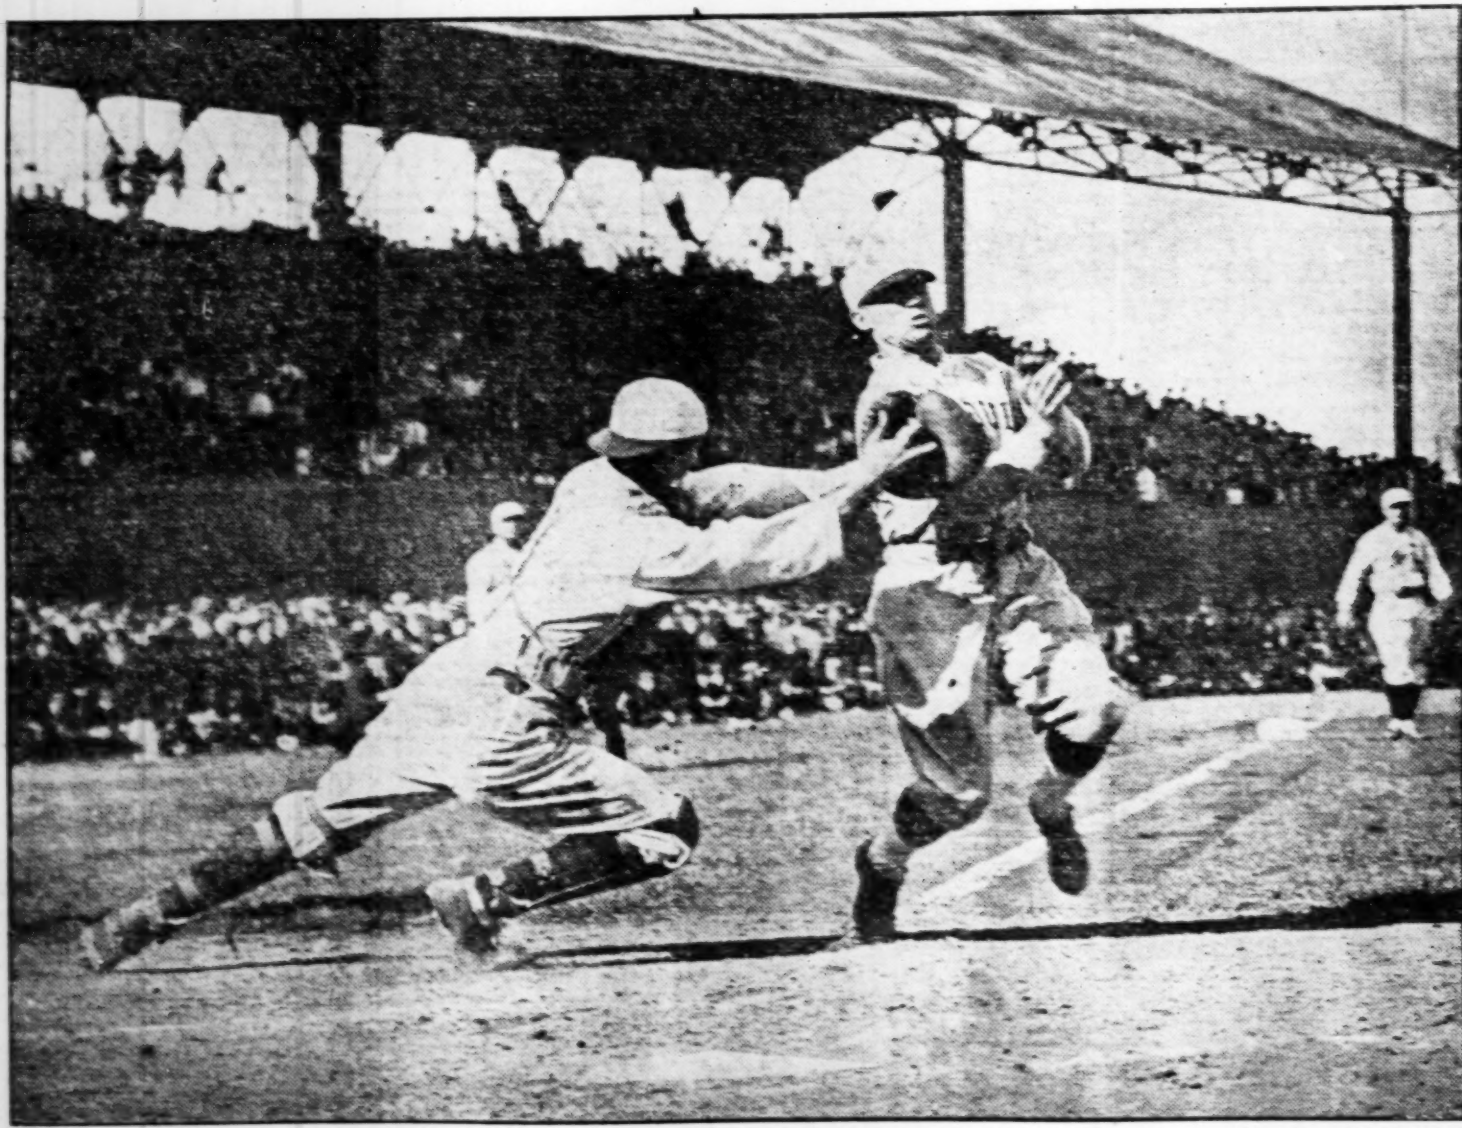

Ansmith returned the ball to Deak and at that moment Williams looked for second. Deak threw to Bottomly nipped as he was about to score, by Kenneth Williams' long heave to Seaverid.

One of the three times that Sisler was turned back, trying to score.

CIONI WINS ROLLER SKATING CHAMPIONSHIP

CHICAGO, April 10.—Roland Cioni of Akron, O., last night won the world's championship roller skating tournament here with 49 points to his credit. Cioni also won the 10-mile race, the final tournament event, his time being 23:29.1-5. Cioni, with Rodney Peters of St. Louis, and Joe Laury of Chicago, bunched at the finish. Cioni winning by a scant 34 feet, with Laury second and Peters third.

Toporcer and Sisler darted for home. Again Toporcer threw home and Sisler was caught.

Barfoot, North and Fertia twirled after Deak had worked five innings. Barfoot fanned two Browns in the sixth, but had to retire in the seventh under fire. The Fohlmen waited him out and when he grooved they were plated.

North retired for a pinch hitter and Fertia worked in the ninth. North was effective, but the Browns scored off Fertia, aided by a walk.

Except for his unusual wildness, Deak was effective and would have escaped trouble had his support been stronger. His work was encouraging. In previous years he has been unable to tell this early in the spring.

Princeton Bars Five Athletes

By the Associated Press.

PRINCETON, N. J., April 10.—Thomas H. McNamara, baseball captain, and Ralph Gilroy, football star, have been declared ineligible for further athletic activity at Princeton University, but are NOT guilty of professionalism or flagrant misconduct, Dean Howard McLaughlin stated last night.

Dean McLaughlin said the placing of these athletes on the ineligible list was the result of investigation by the Athletic Committee composed of Yale, Harvard and Princeton men and indicated that the committee would make further announcements during the next week affecting Yale and Harvard athletes.

Three other Princeton men have been declared ineligible by the intercollegiate committee.

PRINCIPAL TRACK TEAM ARRANGES FIVE MEETS

According to an announcement made this morning by Athletic Director Christie the schedule of meets for the Principia Academy track team will be as follows: April 20, University City High (practice meet); April 27, McKinley High; May 4, Soldan High; May 13, entry in Municipal championships; May 20, entry in Washington University intercollegiate.

Last year's regular met and elected Ed Peitret captain of the team for this season. Peitret and Clifford Fitzgerald are counted on for points in the dash events. Tom Green, the tennis and basketball star, is trying out for the middle distance events, while Courtney Dow, captain last year, looks good in the high jump. Jimmie George, the football captain, is training for the shot put, while Ralph Niemoller and Jeff Rice have shown progress in pole vaulting.

Vangilder Second Hurler to Go Nine Innings for the Brownies

VANGILDER was the second Brownie pitcher to go nine innings this spring. Shocker went the route in New Orleans and repeated here Saturday. Although Vangilder was pounded, he showed plainly that his condition was excellent. His preparation was interrupted a week ago by an infected foot, which makes his work yesterday all the more satisfactory.

Baby Doll Jacobson, batting hero Saturday, was unable to hit the Cardinal hurlers yesterday. Jake fanned twice, Barfoot fooling him once.

Seaverid and Ansmith gave the best exhibition of catching that has been seen in St. Louis in years. Every play at the plate was a clash of brawn against brawn. The base runners hurried themselves in, spikes flaring. But the two catchers never flinched and there was not a fumble or a dropped ball. And the backstops had to throw themselves sprawling to catch some of the would-be run-getters.

There was an unusual bit of scoring necessary in the eighth inning. With Mann on third, Toporcer fled to right. Tobin muffed the drive. He was given an error and Toporcer a sacrifice fly as Mann probably would have scored.

"Thank goodness, that's over," said Lee Fohl after the game. He will depart with the Browns' squad tonight for Chicago, where the season will be opened with the White Sox Wednesday. He said Shocker certainly would pitch the opening game.

Only one Brownie still on the roster will not make the trip to Chicago. Catcher Watkins will be sent home and probably will be placed with a minor league club shortly.

Heine Mueller closed his spring series activities with a crashing double. The ball went among the crowd in right center and Heine was so busy watching it that he stumbled as he reached second and had to retire. Mann ran for him.

Tobin made a spectacular catch in the seventh inning. Stock poked a long drive which would have fallen among the spectators for two bases. But Johnnie darted into the crowd and leaped into the air to make the catch. The spectators scurried out of the way to avoid Tobin's spikes.

In the second inning Toporcer made one of the prettiest stops ever seen, and with a little aid from Bottomly would have completed the play at first. Seaverid sent a hopper past Stock and it appeared impos-

No Foreign Fee Able to Extend Our Mr. Dempsey

Boxers Champion Is Likely to Encounter on Trip Around All Inferior.

By Bert Igoe.

The Post-Dispatch's Eastern Bureau.

NEW YORK, April 10.—The world's champion will head a progressive. With the end in view, week, is capable of giving Dempsey more than the thrill of fighting in his corner, awaiting the big fight now, as we see it, the possibilities include Joe Louis, Georges Carpentier, Ben Demery, Wells, Frank Goddard, Gene Smith, Paul Journee and that 'em out.

Carpentier, of course, wants his and shoulders over any man in the crowd; but the tragedy of the Thirty Acres is the tip-off on the rest of them. Things of course could be alleviated by the sudden appearance of Harry Wills, Roper, Bob Martin, Harry Green, Brennan or even Jim Tracy, the Australian.

This little army of glove toppers in this country, and if all of them suddenly decided on a Dempsey tour there might be action a-plenty for the big champion.

McAuliffe Likes Beckett.

Jack McAuliffe says that Beckett would really give Dempsey a battle. Americans hardly realize that, though they may respect McAuliffe's judgment greatly, he picked the Johnson and Jeffries of fair within two rounds and told what would happen one year later the unfortunate Jeffries was crushed out of retirement.

He said Dempsey would knock Wills silly in his time, so you see McAuliffe, after all, does not hang in the class of bad boxing prognosticators. In the first place, Beckett is too small. He can hit, but he can't outlast the steel-fisted champion. He hasn't Dempsey's speed. He surely hasn't Jack's shilly take them on the chin and knock going. In short, seemingly he has no chance in a thousand with Dempsey.

Wells has been out of it too long. Goddard is big and sluggish, and the slow man who faces Dempsey Journee is big, powerful, but out fight according to the Dempsey way of doing things. Cook is Carpenter's last victim. Tracy is an unknown quantity.

Roper, Martin and Green are small. Brennan has held Dempsey off longer than any man living. Harry Wills, of course, because of his size, experience and fine hitting has a chance with any man who walks—if he lands. He might land on Dempsey, and then again he might, and probably would, be first.

That spells curtains.

Despite his wildness Deak indicated that he probably would be ready long before the middle of May, the date of his first victory last year. He was using speed such as he has merely reserved for late in the spring.

Right field must be a hard game for Cardinal fly chasers. Heathcote roamed there yesterday and showed he escaped without an error. The work of several flies was not impressive. He starred at the bat with no doubles.

$50,000 Race for 3-Year-Olds Will Settle 1922 Title

Lakonia Announces Championship Cup Stakes, to Be Run About June 17.

By G. F. T. Ryall.

The Post-Dispatch Metropolitan.

NEW YORK, April 10.—The Kentucky Jockey Club is nothing if not progressive. With the end in view of bringing the winners of the Kentucky Derby, the Kentucky Oaks and Belmont Stakes together in what might be called a championship race for 3-year-olds, it will offer a $50,000 race, known as the Lakonia Cup, at the Lakonia summer meeting. As the Kentucky Derby, the President's Cup and the Kentucky Oaks are the most important races in the country, the Lakonia Cup will be a very important race.

"Listen In" on the AIR'S WONDERS—Install a FREE "Jewel" in Your Home

Radio is truly "The Newest Marvel of This Marvelous Age." You can sit at home and listen to informative, instructive and entertaining programs broadcast through the air. You can receive bulletins, vocal and instrumental concerts, weather forecasts, market reports, time signals, etc.

Description of the Free "Jewel" Radiophone Receiving Set

No taps, continuous wave length variation. Equipped with tuning coil of latest and most scientific design. Good substantial cabinet, bakelite panel, bevel and graduated dial, sensitive and permanent crystal adjustment. No batteries required and no maintenance cost. Everything complete.

The head set consists of two receiving phones, 2400 ohm resistance, navy type.

Quite as important as the tuning coil are the phones. Those with the "Jewel" are exceptionally sensitive, being the same make as those in use in the Post-Dispatch station K S D for receiving.

The "Jewel" is rated as a 50-mile instrument, and under favorable atmospheric conditions will receive radio signals from that distance. It is only recommended, however, at this time of the year, for St. Louis and suburbs. Tests have shown that the "Jewel" picks up Post-Dispatch radio programs clearly and distinctly.

Complete instructions for installation and operation with each set. Briefly, it is the finest and most sensitive and compact Radiophone of its type.

The outfit, as we will deliver it to you, will include tuning coil in handsome, polished cabinet, head set, consisting of two receiving phones and instructions. It will not include wire or insulation for antenna or "ground"—which may be obtained at nominal cost.

You Can Earn a Jewel—FREE—By Getting 10 New Subscriptions to The Daily POST-DISPATCH. Here Are the Requirements—Read Carefully:

10 subscriptions are required—each for 6 months. No extra credit for yearly subscriptions.

New subscriptions are required—from persons not now reading the Daily POST-DISPATCH, whether purchased from newsboy or news dealer, or delivered by carrier.

Daily subscriptions are required. No credit allowed for Sunday POST-DISPATCH subscriptions. A Sunday POST-DISPATCH reader who has not been reading the Daily POST-DISPATCH may subscribe through our plan.

Verified subscriptions are required. We investigate the validity of the order and the subscriber's responsibilities. All orders are received subject to acceptance or rejection by the POST-DISPATCH.

Home-Delivered subscriptions are required. Business district readers are better served by newsboys and cannot be included under the terms of this offer. This makes necessary a definitely restricted area, and orders will not be accepted for delivery within the district bounded:

Do St. Louis Girls Demand Too Much of Their Escorts?

Bettors to Women's Page Editor Discuss Charge That Boys Who Try to Entertain Girls Are Kept Broke.

DOES STRINDBERG KNOW SPRING IS HERE?

One feels a bit sad, after reading Mr. Strindberg's barbed phrases. One feels that the earth has turned into a bewildering place of feeling, puny males, and of lantern-jawed, amazonian she-critters. And then one looks out the office window, and behold! the same periwinkle and orchid-hued flappers, with their joyous scarves and their piquant faces, are tripping gaily to and fro. The same average, ruddy youths, with their air of Yankee pep and their jaunty swing, are strolling, and gazing discreetly at the maidens. By the seven eternals, it is Spring! The flappers have discovered it, the mousy little chief has discovered it—she is ruining her otherwise neat appearance with a horrible red hat. The youths have discovered it; even the seedy old gentleman who is taking his shoppin' daughter to lunch has discovered it. But Strindberg, ah me! Strindberg, who is trying to lead us to the light, forsooth, is still the pursued and trembling human beast, hiding from the she-critter behind the unrelenting stalk of a tropical palm. What boots it that the weekly stipend of the youth is swallowed in the prosaic maw of bread and butter and shoe shines, if he has enough left over to take his girl to the movies? Perhaps she'll kiss him good night. And what's the difference if his girl has spent her last cent on a tweed suit and some chiffon hose? They'll make her boy to kiss her good night. Life must be a bit complicated for Strindberg, especially in the spring, when we so-called average citizens and backbones of civilization give up earnest problems with a sigh of relief, and just automatically stop thinking, for pleasurable processes. "Art thou the victorious one, the self-conqueror, the ruler of thy passions, the master of thy virtues?" Thus do I ask thee. This last I ask of Mr. S., who so graciously offers to lead us to the light.

SHE COULD BE A REAL PAL.

To the Editor of the Women's Page: Very interesting is the person who calls himself "An Average Young Man." We girls always get the blame, but—is it our fault all the time? No. Not always. When the boys take us out, don't they expect to have a good time? They certainly do. Girls, wouldn't you like to meet a real fellow for once, one who wouldn't insist on kissing you when he brought you home? Where is that kind? There aren't any. James Oliver Curwood and Peter B. Kyne write such wonderful stories of men, who have such a sense of honor for girls and treat them as a girl should be treated. But alas! there aren't any of that kind. If they only were!

I am a regular girl. I can swim, skate, row a boat, play tennis, golf, ride horseback, and any outdoor sport appeals to me. I can also cook, bake, keep house and do everything that goes with it and I like to go to shows. I have many friends and they aren't proud, either. We have wonderful times when we go together. I dress up to the minute in everything—short skirts, rolled socks and bobbed hair, too. And yet, I'm no flapper. I long for a real boy who could be a real pal, who wouldn't expect all the mushy stuff.

About the girls paying their own way, why if the boys haven't that much respect for us and don't like us enough to pay our way, they are not to be bothered with. We girls can get along much better without them. How about it, girls?

ONE WHO COULD BE A REAL PAL.

SAYS GIRLS DO NOT NEED THE MEN.

To the Editor of the Women's Page: I think that B. G. L.'s opinion of girls is that of a young high school fellow (who goes there for no serious reason except a good time), or a young man who has no respect for himself or girls or women, either. He thinks girls should pay their own way or they haven't the pride or respect for themselves that they should have. Well, for myself, I go out often and pay my own way, but should I go with a young man he will have to pay my way, for I consider it an honor for any fellow like B. G. L. if a girl would even go out with him. I think that he is one of the men who consider it right for his wife to earn her own living, working every day and doing the housework in the evening, or else he would live in fifth while he sits down and reads the sporting news. As for girls not being able to take care of themselves, he is wrong. A girl when she goes out with a man generally lets him take care of her like a baby, because the man is so conceited as to think a girl is afraid to go out alone. Also that she isn't capable of taking care of herself. Though she is more able to take care of herself than any man in the world. But a man must feel that he is a hero and that a girl would die without him and his wondrous care.

If you men consider yourselves good sports, I don't, for I don't see where you pay for anything that you do not get. For you buy a girl flowers and candy and tell her how much you love her (thinking what a fool she is to believe it) and sometimes the girl is foolish enough to believe it, and after awhile you tire of her and stay away. By doing so you break her heart. Then you men get together and have a good laugh over it and think what a wonder you are to make her believe all the lies you have told her. You know, also, that you have had a good time taking that girl out and spending your money on her or you wouldn't do so. But if you really think a girl should pay her way and go out with a man when every girl can have a better time if she hasn't a man to bother with, you are more than a fool and there isn't any hope for you.

If the person who signs himself as An Average Young Man could meet some girls who are willing to show him a good time, and go to cheaper shows I think he would change his mind about some of the girls in St. Louis. I wish that I could introduce him to some girls that I know who do not expect after-theater suppers or highballs. Girls who enjoy an evening at home with men who have sense and don't expect the impossible all the time. Girls who don't envy a hike, but must hike alone for the young men of today don't want to walk.

I have found in most cases that the young man himself is the cause of his difficulties. If he doesn't, he doesn't suggest a car ride instead of a hike and an evening at the show instead of staying at home. Isn't he always trying to take a

THE MIND OF THE CHILD

By William A. McKeever

WHAT goes into the mind of your boy or girl aged from 12 to 20? Tell me that and I shall easily explain what must come out in character. At the beginning of adolescence your child becomes introspective. That is, he falls into the practice of comparing himself with other selves, and continues to decide as to who and what he ought to be. It is the age of formation and reformation of opinion, of ideals, of ambition.

The quality of the materials—thoughts, ideas, ideals—filter daily into the mind of your adolescent and find judgment in his subconsciousness—that is the most reliable gauge of his character and his achievements for the future. Any parent may make a test of the matter in relation to his own boy or girl. Does the child daily glean from printed page or speech of another at least one good elevating thought? Does he hear attentively one good positive admonition? Does he hear the utterance of a fervent prayer?

Does he join the singing of an inspiring hymn? Does he listen to the strains of lofty instrumental music? Does he converse with some person or teacher whose suggestions are stimulating? Thus you may easily trace the matter and make, as it were, a spiritual map of your child's mind. Such positive and stimulating ideas as the foregoing—if your child is so fortunate as to receive them from his daily surroundings—go into the subconsciousness and there accumulate a storehouse of helpful and inspiring suggestions for the future. Then, in time, as he goes about his ordinary business, these will spring out of their hidden place in his memory and become definite factors in his decision and conduct.

It is, in a sense, the "secret place of the Most High," the subconscious memory of the growing personality. To fill it full of goodly ideals and stimulating suggestions during the years of elasticity is to lay the ground work for a strong and useful life to become available for later service. Let us not be in a hurry to perfect the mind and morals of our younger generation. Let us give greater heed, however, to the subconsciousness as a psychical storage battery for future use. Just now the problem is not so much what comes out of the mind as expression and conduct, but what goes into the mind of our boys and girls as ideas and ideals.

These, rightly stored up and placed, will in future time positively control the character of our sons and daughters. It will finally be with them "as he thinketh in his heart so is he." But if he has nothing worth while in his heart—in his subconsciousness—to think; then, where is he, and what can he hope to be?

girl to a better show than the other fellow can? Rivalry and jealousy are the causes of all, for either the girl or boy is trying to show someone else that he is better, just because they do not like that person.

LILLY S.

TELLS HIS SAD EXPERIENCE.

To the Editor of the Women's Page: Reading, in your paper last night, of the experiences of "An Average Young Man" with our cold-blooded self-centered St. Louis girls, the armor of forgetfulness, surrounding the ashes of my own similar experience, was cleft and once more became the cynosure of my mind's eye—and I would like to pour out my story to you—trying to keep out the venom, barbed satire and cynicism (a veneer to cover the hurt) that rises to my lips at mention of most of our modern young girls and is frequently unsuccessfully stifled.

Leaving college three years ago, at 21, the world was bright, and seemed to me a welcoming hand. Ambition, talent, personality were boon companions in my cosmic scheme—they were a part of me, and I soon began to forge slowly but surely a path—then, inevitably, I met the sex of Diplomats! Rabid Hedonists!

Balzac depicted a lurid picture of miserliness, grasping greed—Grand but all the resources of his prolific pen would fail to delineate the sordid, crass, ever-demanding of the "fare sex" of today!

It took me a trifle more than a year to discover that "they" did not want me—I was the "means to an end"—so long as I had the money to carry on, my presence was endured—puppet.

They disdained street cars, rolled their heavily fringed eyes, arched their expensive brows, shrugged their obvious white shoulders at mention of them—if you have not a Marmon of your own, "why, we'll have to take a taxi!"

Blaise! Sophisticated! Bah! I won't go on detailing—I might elaborate, but "An Average Young Man" has covered the ground sufficiently.

A machine I did not have; my salary could not stand the constant drain. My brain, suffering from the continual round of social jazz, was atrophying; my work slumped and realization came.

And I thank God I had the strength to cross the Rubicon. The "side line" was a certain comfort. My former companions I've dropped. I'm attending night school, resumed some of my college athletic activities, and am saving money.

Indelibly imprinted in my mind is this: Not a girl do I know with whom I dare to associate. "You're a pal, and I do not care to go through the crucible of 'finding them out.' Where is the end, and what?" EXPERIENTIA DOCT.

A Loveless Marriage

The Absorbing Story of a Woman's Heart

By RUBY M. AYRES.
(Copyright, 1922.)

WE walked across the lawn silently. When we were right out of sight of the dancing he stopped, laid a hand on either of my shoulders, and looked down at me.

"Whichever the question you were talking about?"

I KNEW I ought not to listen; I knew that the right thing to do was to leave Richard—to go back to the crowded marquee, anywhere away from the magic of his voice. But I loved him.

He went on angrily:

"It's the most utter driving nonsense. She's only a child. I'm fond of her, but more because she is your daughter than for any other reason. Why, she was a baby when I first saw her. Don't you remember?"

"I know."

"She'd be the first to laugh if I told her what people were saying," he went on in the voice of one who tries to reassure himself. "We've been friends—only friends. She wants a boy of her own age, not a middle-aged man with his life behind him. She'd be the very first to laugh at the absurdity of it if she knew."

"Oh, Richard," I said brokenly, "I don't think so. Oh, I had afraid that—that!"

I could not go on. I had never felt so sorry for Elsa as at that moment.

I had known the bitterness of suffering and disillusionment before I was her age, and strained as was the relationship between us, I could not bear to think that my own child was to experience the wakeful nights and colorless days I had known after Richard's death.

"Marjorie!" He spoke my name roughly. "What are you saying? You don't mean that she—that she?"

"She loves you with all her heart," I said brokenly.

There was a tragic silence; I could hear Richard's heavy breathing through the warm summer night. The hand had stopt playing. Here and there voices and laughter broke the silence.

Then he took my hands in his. "What do you wish me to do?" he asked. "I leave it to you to decide. She is your child—and my only wish is to please you. Tell me, Marjorie, what shall I do?"

I WONDER if any other mother has ever been left to decide such a tragic question.

Elsa was my child, and I suppose I should have put her happiness before my own, and yet she did not love Richard as I did; her love had not stood the test of a lifetime as mine had, all the best years of her life before her, and mine were gone—into a past that held all my joy of happiness.

Married to a man whom I did not love; robbed of the son I adored, I stood there in the summer night, clinging to Richard's hands, tormented by what I knew was the right thing to do.

Whatever I said, he would do it. I knew.

I broke out desperately:

"I can't decide—I can't—don't ask me."

And then once again temptation came to me as it had come that summer night down in Devonshire. I had but to say the word and Richard would take me away from Francis, and give me the shelter of his love.

I was like a drowning soul clutching desperately at a straw, with the full knowledge that it meant eternal destruction.

"I can't—can't," I said again.

"And then through the night came a voice."

"Mother! Mother!"

It was Elsa, and yet in the distance, softened by the gentle stirring of the breeze, it sounded like her brother's voice—so like that for a moment I held my breath and longed for it to come again, so that I might cheat myself into the belief, for one little moment, that it was indeed my own boy come back.

"Mother! Mother!"

And now it was nearer.

I took my hands from Richard's and stood waiting.

Through the shadowy trees she came, a small white fairy in her low-cut gown and diamonds gleaming in the pale gold of her hair.

"I've been looking for you everywhere," she said breathlessly. "And" eyes fell on Richard.

"Have you two been dancing?" she asked me.

"I'm afraid we haven't," I answered gently. I put my arm round her and kissed her flushed cheek.

"I'm afraid we have been talking about you, darling. Mr. Tempest is here."

I put her hand into his. Oh, it wasn't a noble sacrifice. God, who can see into each aching, jealous heart, knows that it broke mine to give him up, even though it was to my own child.

He turned and went away through the garden alone.

Twenty-second installment.

SOME mothers and their daughters are like sisters together. Elsa only treated me as sort of poor relation who is allowed to live in the house and is paid to make herself agreeable.

"And is it true," Mrs. Lambert went on, "that she is—well, that there is something between her and that handsome Mr. Tempest?"

I forced a smile.

"He is years older than Elsa," I said.

"Naturally, but he is a very young-looking man, and she seems immensely taken with him. My boy saw them in Oakley Woods this morning, and he was so happy."

"Yes, I know they went there," I answered.

When I was dressing for the dance that night, something hard struck my window from the outside.

I listened for a moment wonderingly, and then the little sound was repeated.

I crossed the room and, opening the window wide, leaned down into the garden.

It was not yet dark, but there were many shadows and that curious grayness that so often follows great heat.

Richard Tempest stood there on the path below.

He raised his finger as if to tell me not to speak, then he threw something up. I caught it in a trembling hand, and went back again, closing the window.

The little object I held was a note screwed up and addressed in pencil. I unfolded it with as much trembling eagerness as a girl who receives her first love letter; but there was nothing much in it.

"I must see you alone tonight; where and when?"

I burnt the note in a candle flame on my dressing table and threw the powder into the night; then finished dressing and went downstairs.

THE garden was lit with hundreds of tiny colored lamps; it looked like a scene from a fairy play. The big marquee was lit with electric lights and decorated with red and white flowers. We were to have supper on the lawn.

"Oh, how pretty!" I said involuntarily, as I stood at the open door. "Pretty enough," said Francis, coming behind me. "An ideal night for lovers, eh?"

"Yes," I agreed.

He eyed me critically.

"You look as young as Elsa," he said, reluctantly, "but you're round the waist. 'Kiss me, Marjorie.'"

I turned my face away.

"Oh, please don't! You'll ruffle my hair!" I objected.

He kissed me twice, roughly, and let me go.

"I'm a fool to give you a thought," he said.

I had never conquered my dislike to his embraces. Sometimes I think he knew that, and so forced them on me.

I had little time to think of myself. Already there were two more klieg lights coming up the drive—the big headlights of motors, the smaller lamps of carriages.

By a creak of the marquee was crowded and dancing in full swing.

I saw Richard dancing with Elsa. Francis was joking with a French girl whom Mrs. Lambert had brought with her. Everywhere was laughter.

Several people asked me to dance and at last I had to give in. I have always loved dancing, and that night as I twirled round I forgot that this was my daughter's coming of age party, and was a girl again myself—in heart, at least.

I had just finished a set of lancers with a boy friend of Elsa's—a tall, broad-shouldered lad, who no doubt had paid me attention, because I was her mother—when Richard Tempest came down the marquee towards us.

"May I have the pleasure of a dance?" he asked formally.

I tried to refuse; I remembered that I had no dances to spare, but he took the card from my reluctant hand, and there were four numbers disengaged.

He scribbled his initials against two of them, bowed, and went away.

M. DANCING partner looked after Richard fully.

"Is Elsa going to marry him?" he asked.

"Oh, I don't think so," I answered quickly. "She likes him, but she is only a child."

"Many men marry young girls," he said.

I had no reply. Were Richard's attentions so marked, I wondered, that so many people commented upon them?

The boy—young Thorold, his name was—sat beside me, savagely biting the fingers of his gloves.

"She won't look at me!" he burst out. "And I'd let her walk over me if she liked."

"Perhaps that's why she won't look at you," I told him. "She is the kind of girl who will never prize a thing she can get easily."

I think that is true of so many women.

He seemed to resent his impulsive confession, and sat beside me in silence till the band started again, and he rose to fetch his next partner.

"Will you come back to the marquee?" he asked, but I said I would rather stay where I was.

There was a hope in my heart that Richard would not be able to find me if I did not go back—a hope, did I say, when all my heart was crying out for him?

But he found me—and took my hand, drawing me to my feet.

"I want to speak to you," he said. "You read me that note."

"Yes, but let us stay here," I said.

After - Dinner Trick When Baby Sleeps

By Thornton W. Burgess

Test your judgment you old mend Hold 'till you see the end.

There was great excitement in the Old Orchard among certain of the feathered folk there. It had started when Farmer Brown's Boy appeared early one morning and took down the bird houses which he had had up in the trees for two or three years. Winsome Bluebird and Mrs. Winsome were the first ones to discover what he was doing and they were so upset they could hardly talk about it. You see, they had counted on sadly. We've got to have a home and this is no place here in the Old Orchard for one. I can't bear to think of leaving Old Orchard, but we must do it."

Tommy said, "My, but won't Jenny Wren be furious when she arrives! Just this how she will scold! Skim the willow and Cresty the Flycatcher will be just as badly off. I can tell Farmer Brown's Boy one thing and that is that the Old Orchard isn't going to be as well cared for as it used to be. I just can't understand him."

Tommy and Winsome were still talking the matter over when Farmer Brown's Boy returned. With him he had a dozen new houses. These he had once begun putting up in the trees, placing each so that the entrance would face away from the cold wind. When he had placed the last one he went back to the barn and presently returned with more. By this time he had them all up there were more houses in the Old Orchard than there had been before.

Tommy and Mrs. Chickadee became even more excited than when they had discovered Farmer Brown's Boy taking down the old houses. They couldn't wait for him to leave before beginning to inspect these new houses.

On one of those houses for their home. They had used it the year before, and all the way up from the Sunny South they had thought about it and planned to get to housekeeping in it as soon as possible. To see it taken down and carried away almost broke their hearts.

Tommy Tit the Chickadee arrived from the Green Forest just in time to see Farmer Brown's Boy take down the house that he and Mrs. Chickadee had decided to set up housekeeping in. "Dec, dee, dee, dee!" cried Tommy Tit, flying about in great excitement. "Dec, dee, dee, dee! I wouldn't have believed it of Farmer Brown's Boy! It isn't like him! It isn't like him! I wonder if he is trying to drive us out of the Old Orchard?"

Winsome and Mrs. Bluebird whistled mournfully. Tommy Tit and Mrs. Chickadee chattered excitedly. Farmer Brown's Boy looked at them and grinned as he went right on taking down all the little houses in the Old Orchard. When he had disappeared with the last one the Bluebird and Chickadees began a careful look-up over every tree in the Old Orchard. In only one tree was there a hole. That one was in a tree down in the far corner and it was occupied. Spooky, the Screech Owl and Mrs. Spooky had their home there. Farmer Brown's Boy had left that hole especially for them when he and Farmer Brown had filled all the other holes or had cut off all the dead branches in which there were holes. You see, that was a well-cared-for orchard.

Now Winsome Bluebird and Tommy Tit never make their homes in the open as most birds do. They nest in holes in trees or posts, just as do Drummer the Woodpecker and Yank the Nuthatch and Skimmer the Swallow and Jenny Wren and Yellow Wing the Flicker and Cresty the Flycatcher. All of these will nest in houses put up for them if the houses are of the right kind. Now there were neither holes nor houses in the Old Orchard.

"We'll have to go somewhere else and hunt for a home," said Winsome

FREQUENT source of disturbance in your children between the ages of 1 and 4 is caused by objects which the little ones pick up is carried to the Pina and needles, scissors, pieces of money, buttons and other objects are the most common objects usually scattered about in reach of the infant as he lies on the floor or makes his way chair to table.

The object is sharp it may cause a laceration in the throat as it goes down the gullet. If large it lodge in the upper air passages cause asphyxia—but this possibility is rare.

Fashion News Notes

LONDON.—The sunflower has sprung up as a decorative motif. One finds in boudoirs round cushions of orange velours topped by a huge sunflower in black with a multiplicity of French knots for its center. One notes a sunflower pin cushion on the dresser. Or, to be sure, a sunflower at each side of the girdle on a yellow frock, the neck and sleeves of which are outlined with black pearls. Even the toddler has made the sunflower her own, turned it into a white and blue exotic gown on one side of her little white bonnet.

CHICAGO.—A shop here is featuring black silk pajamas. They are much more gay than pajamas in colors, for the black is heightened by embroidery in purple, vermilion and yellow across the breast, down the back and around the knees. Further brilliance is added by long silk fringe around the ankles, the fringe repeating the embroidery colors. With the black pajamas are worn silk slippers in some of the gay colors.

CHICAGO.—The kimono sleeve is seen on the majority of costume blouses here. Seven out of ten over-blouses have this sleeve, whether their material is tricot, crepe de chine or georgette. Tricot, by the way, is creeping back into favor after having been half killed by popularity two or three seasons ago. Some of the smartest over-blouses are of the new and more pliable tricot, a lovely shade of gold being featured in one of the specialty shops.

PARIS.—A fascinating trimming for blouses or gowns is the new basket-work of ribbons, interwoven by hand as a child weaves paper mats in kindergarten. Each intersection is held by a stitch and often by a tasseled tuft of silk. In contrasting shades, these basket-work triangles have appeared on the cuffs of sleeves or at the shoulder when the sleeve is short, or to fill in a deep V-neck. Often they are supplemented by a fringe of ribbon loops around the girdle or hem of a frock.

PINEHURST, N. C.—Brown and tan squares in checkerboard effect were used on a striking afternoon costume seen here. The frock was of tan brown crepe knit with a draped skirt. The lower part of the skirt was of crepe knit in the brown and tan squares. The hat worn with this costume had a white brim and tan and brown squares of crepe knit on the crown. The squares were repeated in a single row around the girdle.

NEW YORK.—The metamorphosis of the lowly apron is complete. This season's aprons have little except the name in common with the clumsy, ungraceful affairs of which the name originated. To be an apron today, a bit of cloth must be dainty in shade and texture, lavishly ruffled, even treated, to possess in applique. It is an all-enveloping garment, and in reality a house or porch frock. The apron claim lies in the fact that it has at most only two or three fastenings, and in a pinch may be slipped on over a more formal costume until the chafing dish or electric grill has done its work.

LONDON.—Eyelet embroidery is a feature of the sand-colored suede hats which so many London women have ordered for the spring races. On such hat of sand-colored suede has the brim cut in an elaborate design reminiscent of the eyelet embroidered petticoats of former days. The eyelets are stitched around about with rust silk, and this shade is repeated in the handwork with its tiny bow and in the silk edgings of the brim.

NEW YORK.—Some of the new gloves are half covered with delicate embroidery. Not only is the back of a white glove fastened in a dainty design of blue, black or green, but the cuff is embroidered in a floral pattern. Some of these embroideries combine several pastel shades and the result seems singularly appropriate as an accessory to the elaborate spring costume suit or afternoon gown.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

Strictly Truthful.

"FAR, far too much deceit I see in every place I roam; it's truth and only truth for me until the cows come home! I'll always say just what I think, whatever it's about, and if it drives some folks to drink, why, that's their own lookout. I'll leave the soft and pleasing speech to rushing youth and maid, and though I'll call a peach a peach, I'll call a spade a spade!" Thus spoke our hero, honest James, when starting his career, and as he called some people names they did not often hear. He did not hesitate to say that Johnson was a freak; now Johnson looks the other way when Jimmy starts to speak. He claimed Miss Smith was pretty crude in hunting for a man, and that is how his family feud with all the Smiths began. He said old High-brow was a bore, a cad and a disgrace; today Miss Highbrow shuts the door in candid Jimmy's face. Said Jim: "I'd think such folks would yearn to hear the simple truth!" Which shows he has a lot to learn, the poor, misguided youth. His slogan was, "Unvarnished truth." It was his pride and boast; he did not know truth hurts, forsooth, the folks who need it most. The truth is ever good, no doubt, the truth is ever fair; but it won't always do to shout the whole truth everywhere. Don't let truth's spotlight always glow on folly, flaw and fault; but tell each cheery truth you know, and never call a halt. Had honest James been kind at heart, he could have found some way to emphasize the pleasant part of all he had to say. He would have found some way to reach the hearts of man and maid, had he said more about the peach and less about the spade.

Maxims of a Modern Maid

By Marguerite Mooers Marshall

MARRIAGE is like and unlike the subway featherweight gates. Of both it is true that you pay very little to get IN—but it costs a lot to get OUT of marriage.

One reason why a man is never comfortable in the presence of his wife's best friend is because, "knowing what she knows," she always seems so brightly determined to make the best of him.

The American often gives his wife money from the same mixture of motives which impels him to toss his dog a bone. He has a certain fondness for the creature—but he also wants to stop its teasing and give him a chance to do some work.

The romantic girl gives her heart away; the mercenary maid sells it; the young woman who looks ahead grants a lease to the highest bidder—subject cancellation without notice.

Life is just one shock after another to the Victorian survival. Yesterday women adopted cigarettes, today they're wearing knickerbockers, tomorrow he expects them to turn him out of his club, his smoking car, his strictly private and exclusive grave.

When the self-supporting wife pays her husband a compliment he at least is not compelled to wonder whether she has picked out a spring suit or merely has her eye on a new hat.

One reason why so many marriages are unhappy is because Americans marry as if they were passing a treaty—with too many reservations. Tact is the quality which keeps a girl silent when a man tells her that of course he could make more money easy, but he has all he wants now.

Armstrong's Linoleum

for Every Floor in the House

The floor of a sleeping-porch is almost as important as the bed

A SLEEPING-PORCH becomes a sleeping-room when it has the kind of floor that a room should have.

Select an appropriate linoleum pattern, and you can give your outdoor sleeping-room a warm, beautiful floor, if you have the linoleum properly put down, with a rug here and there.

Builders' deadening felt should be pasted to the bare boards and the linoleum firmly cemented down on the felt.

Linoleum so laid is not a cold floor. Modern linoleum is made of cork, a non-conductor of heat. Cemented to the felt, it furnishes a smooth, even surface, and is perhaps the most easily cleaned of all floors.

Have you seen a room floored with Armstrong's Linoleum, in the manner we have described? If not, any attempt to imagine its beauty, convenience, or economy will fall short of the real excellence of such a floor.

We have a little booklet, "Decorative Linoleum Floors," containing twenty-four color-plates, showing Jaspés, carpet inlaid, parquetry inlaid, inset marble tiles, printed designs, etc. This booklet will be sent free on request. You can take it to a store and show the merchant exactly what you want to see. Any store will give you estimates of the cost of Armstrong's Linoleum put down in your home. All Armstrong's Linoleum is guaranteed to give satisfaction.

After-Dinner Trick

When Baby Swallows a Pin

By Charlotte C. West, M. D.

FREQUENT source of disturbance in your children between the ages of 1 and 4 is caused by objects which the little ones pick up. Everything a child in these ages picks up is carried to the mouth. Pins and needles, scissors, pieces of money, buttons and other objects are the most common things usually scattered about in reach of the infant as he crawls on the floor or makes his way about the table.

The object is sharp it may cause damage in the throat as it goes down the gullet. If large it may lodge in the upper air passages cause anoxia—but this possibility is exceedingly rare. Parents are usually needlessly alarmed at the outcome of an accident of this nature, and, strange to say, there is seldom cause for the hysterical anxiety frequently exhibited by nervous parents.

Even a sharp open safety pin will pass through the intestinal tract without creating alarming symptoms. Occasionally an object will be missed by the mother. She is certain she observed it a moment before, lying at a certain spot. Now it is gone. Search fails to reveal it. The conviction grows upon her that the baby has swallowed it. Because of the absence of symptoms and the possibility of error an X-ray examination should be made to clear up the case.

It takes longer for a foreign object to pass through the intestinal canal than is supposed. The time required is from three to 10 days.

It is a mistake to give an emetic (a vomiting agent) and equally harmful to give a laxative or purge. The diet should be rather full—coarse cereals, green vegetables, bread, potatoes.

An operation should never be considered unless definite local symptoms develop demanding it.

THE MERRY JOURNEYS OF MARY JANE

"Oh, they were having a good time. They made a lot of golden brown pancakes served with Mary Jane Syrup."

Mary Jane Gives A Party to Her Little Friends

ONE night, Mary Jane invited all her little friends to a wonderful party. Dotty Dots, the turtle, came up out of the mud and got one of his feet frostbitten before he got to where the nice warm fire from the hearth threw its glow to the inside of the room.

Billy Bushytail and his wife, Maria, came along with lots of pecans. And Billy Stinger, the porcupine, sat right alongside the fire where nobody could push against him.

All of Mary Jane's little friends came and brought their jews-harps and accordions and bass drums. And Kammer-Kammenzind, the forest shoemaker, came to beat time with his little shoemaker's hammer.

They sang "Way Down Upon the Swanee River" and "Dixie" and "Old Folks at Home" and "Carry Me Back to Old Virginia". And Dotty Dots, the turtle, gave a toe dance.

Then they made a lot of golden brown pancakes served with lots of Mary Jane Syrup on them. And when this was all gone they got five loaves of bread and cut them into nice thick slices, toasted them, and then they spread Mary Jane Syrup all over them. And how they smacked their lips over that. Because Mary Jane Syrup, as you know, is the most delicious syrup even fairies ever tasted.

And then they shook hands with one another—all except Billy Stinger—and kissed each other good-night and went home. And to this very day Mary Jane remembers the wonderful party she had with all her little friends of the woodland.

Cracks in floors around the boards or elsewhere can be factually closed with newspaper. Make a paste of two cups of three quarts water and one spoon of alum. Soak pieces of paper in this. Thoroughly mix mixture and stir it well. It is of the consistency of putty. Rub the newspaper into the cracks with a case knife. It will harden and be invisible when the floor is stained.

In making wheat flour biscuits, muffins or any of the breads do not beat or knead mixture after the liquid is added. This will develop gluten and the quick breads.

Whites of eggs that are not immediately used are apt to "fall" in annoyance can be avoided by adding a pinch of cream of tartar to the eggs when half beaten and continue beating until stiff.

When meat falls from the bone and is hard and tasteless it has probably been boiled too fast. Tense heat, naturally, destroys connective tissue and causes the bumen to coagulate. Gentle softens the fiber and even a piece of meat will become tender cooked slowly and continuously.

If you desire perfect results use inferior butter in baking. It does not wish to use good butter a good butterine or one of the excellent cooking oils that are on the market.

Here is competent testimony. Mr. Flesh, as head of the United States Grain Corporation in St. Louis, knew that only the choicest premium, sound wheat was ever bought for Valier's Enterprise Flour.

Mrs. Flesh, as a practical housekeeper, knows that Valier's Enterprise Flour produces quality and uniformity in baking that she can get with no other flour.

Mrs. Flesh is willing to go to extra trouble and expense to have us send her this flour through a St. Louis retailer.

You can get it at your local grocer's for only a few cents more than you would pay for ordinary flour. And that little extra will come back to you quickly because with Enterprise you don't have baking failures, and you get at least four loaves more from a sack.

MY FAVORITE STORIES

By IRVIN S. COBB

(One of a series of short funny stories by the celebrated American humorist which appear daily in the Post-Dispatch on this page.)

AN APPEAL TO THE SENSES.

THE editor of a New York evening newspaper has a little niece who, on her sixth birthday, received as presents a wrist watch and a large bottle of perfume. Having strapped on the watch and copiously scented herself, the youngster spent the entire day proudly parading the apartment, directing the attention of all and sundry to her new possessions. Eventually she became somewhat of a bore. For the evening some friends of her parents were coming in.

"Honey," said her mother, "I can understand why you should be proud of your birthday gifts, but grown people are not interested in such things. You may come to dinner tonight on condition that you do not once mention your wrist watch or your bottle of perfume."

The little one promised. At the table she sat, saying not a word, but from time to time sniffing audibly, and at frequent intervals raising her left wrist to her ear to catch the sound of the ticking. These tactics failed to attract attention on the part of the guests. Toward the end of the meal, in a lull in the conversation, little Miss Helen spoke:

"Listen, everybody," she said. "If anybody hears anything or smells anything sweet, it's me."

MORE TRUTH THAN POETRY

By James J. Montague.

THE FLAPPER TO THE BAR.

(A Kansas court was lately asked to decide the legal length of a high school girl's petticoats.)

"Balliff," I asked, of the long-faced man,
Who stood so erect and proud,
"What is the case that has filled the place
With this vast and curious crowd?
A murder, perhaps, or a swell divorce?
A society family jar?
A captured still, or a rich man's will,
Or the trial of a movie star?"

"You've got it wrong," said the long-faced man,
With the plying type of sneer,
"We ain't got time for the trial o' crime
In a law mill like this here.
This is a big an' important court,
An' the judges is sittin' there
To decide the right of one Tillie White
(A minor) to bob her hair."

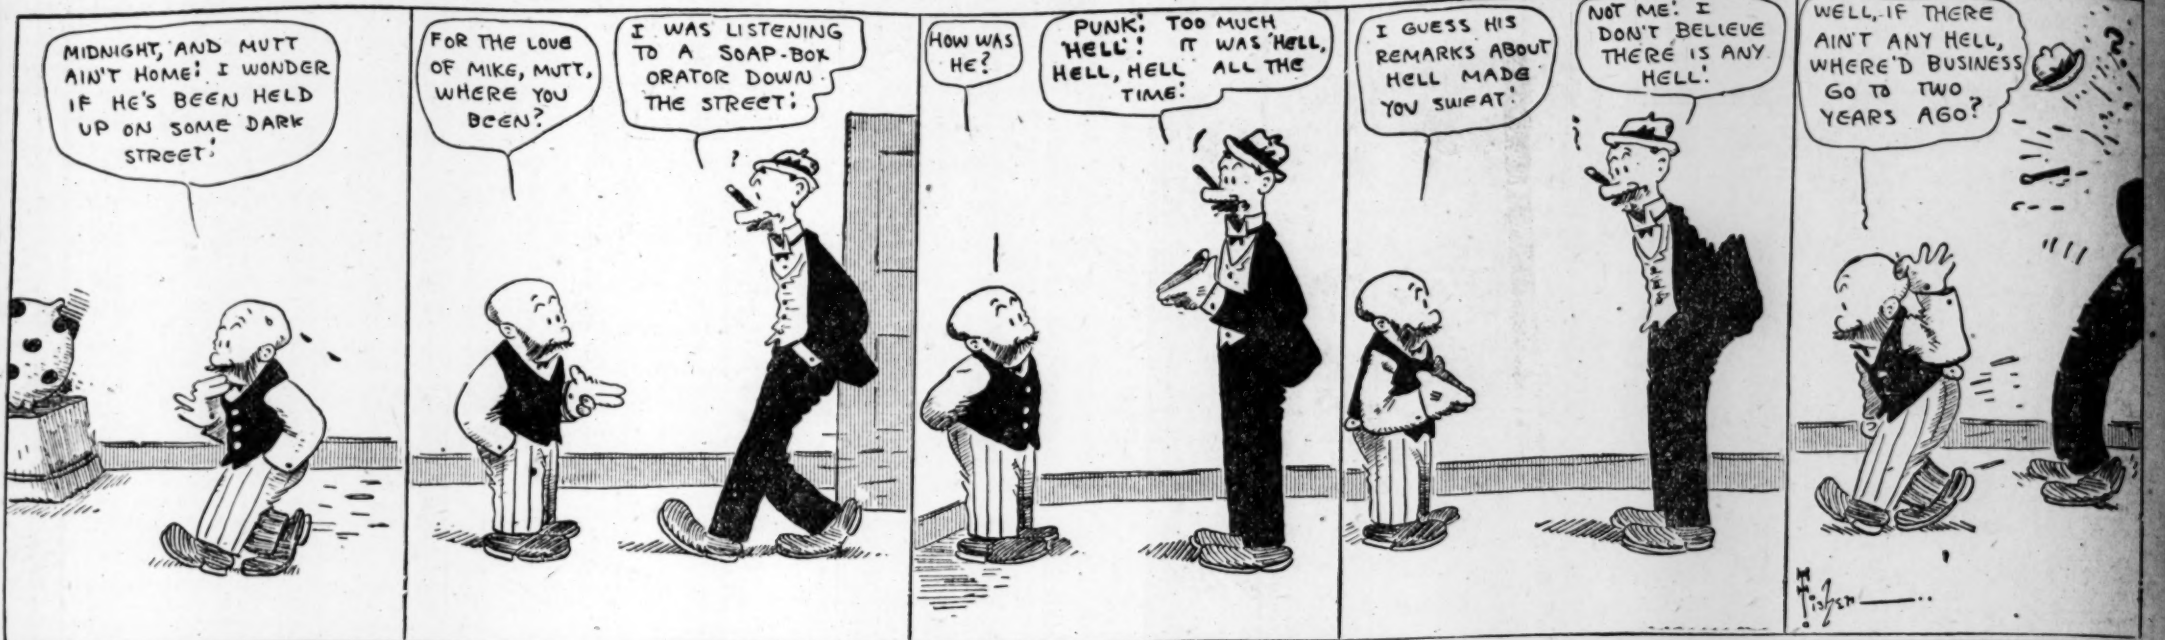

"Mister," said I, to a man in blue,
In a court of the last resort,
"From the solemn maps of the lawyer chaps
This case seems a weighty sort.
Is international law at stake?
Are these legal lights employed
To seek to show that the pact don't go
And the Constitution is void?"

"Tut tut!" said he, with a chill disdain,
While his arrogant features froze,
"We have too much class in this court to pass
Upon trivial things like these.
We now are about to hear the case
Of one Annice Bedelia Gee.
An atrocious flirt, who has worn her skirt
Two inches below her knee."
